BIG GRAFT INDICTMENTS

ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF "DICTATOR" FILLS CZAR WITH TERROR

ONE OF THE IMPERIAL GUARDS TRIES TO KILL GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 11.—The extreme anxiousness that prevails in royal circles was increased to-day when it became known that a bold attempt had been made to assassinate "Dictator" Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaivitch by one of the Imperial guards.

The attempt to kill the Grand Duke was made yesterday during a drill at the Summer camp at Krasnoye-Selo. It was supposed to be a blank cartridge drill, but after an order had been given to fire, a bullet whizzed past the Duke's head.

Those who were in attendance at the exercises say that it could not have been an accident. So frightened became the Czar when he learned of the incident that he declined to spend to-day at the camp as he had made arangements to do.

While the Grand Duke was personally reviewing, manoeuvring and putting the troops through practice, he suddenly was startled by the wasp-like hiss of bullets about his head. Neither himself nor his horse was touched.

Arrests Are Made.

The command to cease firing was immediately given, and the soldiers of the regiment from which the bullets came were marched back to their quarters and an investigation was begun, in the hope of ascertaining from the barrels of the rifles which of the soldiers fired ball cartridges. Several arrests are understood to have been made.

One of the Grand Duke's aides-de-camp, who, however, was not personally present, has advanced the theory that possibly the bullets were fired by accident, but he considered that beyond a doubt there was a deliberate plot on the part of a number of disloyal gentlemen, who planned to take the Duke's life under cover of the general blank cartridge firing. The aide-de-camp added:

Changes Czar's Plans.

"It is no more an accident than was the firing of the famous charge of grape from the saluting battery at the Winter Palace on the occasion of the ceremony of blessing the waters of the Neva by the Emperor a year and a half ago."

The bold attempt on the Grand Duke's life caused an immediate change in the plans of the Czar, who had arranged to go to Krasnoye-Selo to-day and spend a week with the soldiers of his Imperial guards.

The appeal of the members of the former Duma to the soldiers not to fire on their brothers, the peasants, has borne fruit in the shape of a peaceful mutiny on the part of 2,00 soldiers, who have notified their officers that it will be useless for them to give orders to shoot the peasants they have been sent to subdue.

What the effect of this declaration from two regiments on the rest of the army will be can only be conjectured. The authorities are greatly worried, however, over the occurrence.

"Will Not Shed Brothers' Blood."

The two mutinous regiments are the Wilmanstrand and Mooshank Infantry regiments recently sent into Vologda province, one of the largest provinces of Russia, to put down the uprising of the peasants.

The soldiers summoned their officers to the barracks, where a spokesman for the regiments told their superiors bluntly what the soldiers proposed to do.

"We are resolved not to shed the blood of our brothers," the soldiers said. "We ourselves are peasants, and we will not prevent them from trying to obtain their just rights. We warn you not to fire on defenceless men and women, for not only will we refuse to obey, but we will make you suffer for the attempted brutality."

The officers to whom this frank statement was made, on leaving the barracks, telegraphed the news of what had happened to St. Petersburg. General Glassoff, assistant commander of the troops at Moscow, was ordered to Vologda province to subdue the mutineers. He did not succeed in this mission, however, as the soldiers ordered him to desist in his efforts to make listeners of them.

The mutineers continue as masters of the situation in the province, as the government has been afraid to order troops to arrest the rebellious soldiers, fearing the mutineers might be successful if it came to a fight with loyal troops.

Denied Her Child, Spurned by Her Husband, TOOK POISON IN CAB

MRS. EDWARD E. HENRY. SUICIDE.

Woman who, spurned by her husband, took poison in hope of effecting a reconciliation.

Cabman Frank Crossman Tells the Police Tragic Story of Mrs. Henry's Suicide.

"Oh, My Child, Why Can't I Have You," Was Her Pathetic Appeal.

To the police to-day Cabman Frank Crossman told the story of the suicide by poison of Mrs. Edward E. Henry, formerly a society woman of Wellesley Hills, who swallowed a white powder and, later a quantity of chloroform, crying at the same time, "Oh my child! My child! Why can't I have you?" and then ordering the man to drive to the home of her husband from whom she had separated.

At the pretty home which once had been hers, the husband refused to be reconciled, and after the woman was treated in vain in his office she was taken to the Notlek Hospital, where she died.

Frank Crossman, the cabman, says that he was on Washington street, near Rockland, at about 5:30 yesterday afternoon, when the woman who proved to be Mrs. Henry stepped into his cab saying at the same time:

"Drive anywhere."

"Well, where?" asked Crossman.

Obeyed Strange Order.

"Oh, anywhere, to some hotel," was the answer in careless tones.

Crossman, who is used to the vagaries of human nature, was not astonished. He says there was nothing at all in the woman's manner at any time during the evening until she took the poison to indicate that she had any desperate undertaking in hand.

"I drove her out to the Wellesley Hills Inn," said Crossman, in telling of the experience. "When I drew up in front of the house she asked me what it would cost her to stay there all night. About $3, I told her."

"Drive me somewhere else," was Crossman's next order.

Then after a time she leaned forward and said to him: "What will it cost to drive me around all night?"

Crossman told her $10, but said that in that case he would have to change his horses. She tried to dissuade him from that and finally he pretended to agree, but he intended to drive around to his stable by a back way and change steeds all the same.

Asked for Battle of Water.

Further out Washington street and just after Crossman had turned to come back toward Boston, Mrs. Henry said: "Get me a bottle of water."

Crossman told her that he could hardly do this, but that he would get her a glass of water at the next house, which he accordingly did.

Upon handing the woman the glass of water she poured a paper of white powder into it and drank the entire contents, and as he was returning from the house Crossman saw her raise a bottle to her lips and drain its contents. Then she tossed the bottle far from her.

It was just after they had started to drive on toward Boston that Mrs. Henry leaned over and said to the now perplexed

Statement From District Attorney Moran After Report of Grand Jury Regarded as Very Significant—Arrests Expected To-day.

Twelve secret indictments were found by the special Grand Jury, which made its report to-day to Judge Harris of the Superior Criminal Court.

After the report of the Grand Jury, in which nothing was said about the sensational cases which were presented by District Attorney Moran, the District Attorney gave out a statement in which he made no reference to the ice cases, the Chelsea graft case nor to the schoolhouse graft charges.

Moran Silent on the Big Cases.

Because of the fact that Mr. Moran was silent about these cases, which it is known he had under consideration, the inference was drawn by those who followed the matter closely that the work of the Grand Jury in connection with them had been satisfactory to the District Attorney.

District Attorney Moran, in his statement, called attention to the fact that the inquiry into the Fenway graft charges had not been completed, and that he would take that up later. Following is Mr Moran's statement:

"The petit jury will begin trials Monday, Mr. Dennison and Mr. Richardson, my assistants, trying the cases. It is probable that the sitting of the petit jury will last at least three weeks. Mr. Dwyer begins his vacation Monday morning for two weeks. On Monday morning I will begin the examination of all cases pending, both Grand Jury and appeal; first those that are in jail and then those that are on bail. I will continue the performance of this routine work every day until I have examined and made recommendations in every case now on the docket. It is probable that this work will require my attention exclusively for two weeks.

"After I have completed this work I will take up again the Fenway contractors, examining their books and their clerks in my office. After I have completed my examination of the books and the clerks of the contractors, I will be ready to present such evidence as I may find to the Grand Jury, upon the Fenway case. If all of this work is completed by me before the 24th of August, we will have a special sitting of the Grand Jury on August 27. If, however, this work is not completed by me by August 24, we will have no special sitting of the Grand Jury this month, but will have a special sitting in September.

"After Mr. Dwyer has returned from his vacation Mr. Richarson will take his and then Mr. Dennison will go away. I don't need a vacation and will, therefore, take none."

HINTS AT BIG SENSATION.

In discussing the situation an observant official at the court house to-day remarked: "You need not look for anything sensational here to-day but you may expect something to break in the Superior Criminal Court Room on Monday that will make a noise like thunder."

Following a conference between Assistant District Attorney Dennison and Foreman O'Toole of the Grand Jury, Police Inspectors Armstrong and Wait received instructions and left the courthouse. The inference was that the officers had been dispatched to make certain arrests.

Should arrests be made in the cases to-day the prisoners will not be arraigned in court until Monday because the court adjourned shortly after the report of the grand jury was received. The men would be taken to police headquarters, where arrangements could be made for releasing them on bail.

It was said that in all the special grand jury found about seventy-five indictments, of which about fifty were in routine cases and the others in the cases that have attracted so much attention. The following were among the special cases considered by the grand jury:

Chelsea graft charges.

Fenway graft charges.

Cement graft charges in connection with the Normal School buildings.

Charges of extortion and conspiracy in connection with the advance in the prices of ice.

POLITICIANS ANXIOUS.

A large crowd gathered early to-day at the Court House to hear the result of the

PERSECUTED, SAYS GIRL WHO SEEKS DEATH IN LEAP

Police Investigating Suicide Attempt by Pretty Catherine Goldberg.

In Critical Condition at Hospital After Jump from Fourth Story.

Persecution by some one, which is being investigated by the police, it is declared, led pretty Catherine Goldberg, eighteen years old, to attempt death by a leap from a fourth story window of her home at No. 7 Stillman street.

Although the girl is in a critical condition from a fracture at the base of the skull she recovered consciousness at the Relief Hospital long enough to-day to speak to those in attendance upon her. It is said that she admitted hurling herself from the window and declared that she was driven to it.

Mystery was added to the case to-day by the statement of the girl's father, Morris Goldberg, who declared without reservation that his daughter's fall from the window was entirely accidental. This statement of the father is in direct conflict with that of David Shtuker, who lodges with the Goldberg family, and who was present when the girl so nearly met death.

Says Father Scolded Her.

The young man asserts that Goldberg upbraided his daughter because she had been absent from home, and that she was so wrought up over his alleged scolding that she dashed to the window and leaped through it.

Morris Goldberg said that his daughter was sitting on the broad ledge of a window in the dining room talking with David Shtuker. He says that she was apparently in good spirits. Suddenly a scream was heard and he rushed in from the kitchen to see his daughter bruised and bleeding on the bricks of the alley below. He says that Shtuker held in his hand a piece of Catherine's dress which he caught in a vain attempt to save her.

Shtuker said that the family with the exception of Catherine were just concluding a week of feasting and merriment, and when she returned after a mysterious absence of a week. He states that her father took her to task for her strange disappearance, and that one word leading to another caused an exciting altercation.

Caught Hold of Her Dress.

"She rushed into the dining room," said Shtuker. "In a moment I saw what she intended to do as she hurried to the open window. I had only time to reach her dress.

"This is the only reason I know that would cause her to throw herself out of the window. She had always appeared to me as a sensible and even-tempered girl until I saw her jump out of the window.

The unconscious young woman was soon surrounded by a group of excited persons after her fall. Four men carried her to the Relief Station, while a crowd, thinking there had been a murder, were moved to frenzy, and it was necessary for the men with their burden to fight their way through the mob.

One of the occupants of the second floor of the house became so excited that he jumped from his window, giving the impression that he was implicated in the case in some way.

cabman. "Now, I will be a fit subject for a hearse.

This, of course, startled Crossman, but the woman began to talk so pleasantly and naturally that his suspicions were soon forgotten and he drove along thinking that she was joking with him.

Suddenly, when her eyelids drooped and she became unconscious, he realized what she had done and then put whip to his horses and drove furiously to the address she had given.

It was the home of her husband, Dr. Edward E. Henry on Rockland street, Wellesley. Dr. Henry answered the ring at the bell and when he recognized the woman in the carriage he refused to admit her.

"But she's taken poison and she's dying," exclaimed the coachman, "and you've got to help her."

The two men hurried the unconscious woman into the house, and with Dr. Edward E. Bancroft they worked over her for three hours without avail. Then she was sent to the Natick Hospital. Constant work there was also without success, and she died at 3:15 o'clock, unsuccessful in her attempt to regain her husband's affections. He had left the hospital several hours previously, unreconciled.

Mrs. Henry's efforts to end her life were made after a second unsuccessful attempt to see her baby boy, who has remained in the custody of her husband since their separation, a year ago. She had tried to see him on Thursday without success and had renewed her efforts yesterday.

Decided on Supreme Effort.

After her repulse by her husband the second time, she determined upon the startling effort to affect a reconciliation which ended in her death.

Mrs. Henry was formerly Miss Maud Train, one of the best known young women in Wellesley. She was the stepdaughter of Frederick Train, former owner of the Metropolitan Stock Exchange of Boston, and married Dr. Henry four years ago.

Their married life was happy at first and then came rumors connecting her name with misconduct, which she always denied. They had one child, a boy, and when they separated a year ago the father took him.

Mrs. Henry has frequently endeavored to win back her place in her husband's affections and to gain a sight of her baby, but always has been unsuccessful. It is believed that these failures preyed upon her mind. Recently she was a patient at the Westboro Insane Hospital, and was treated for a nervous trouble.

DIED IN DENTIST'S OFFICE.

SOUTH WINDHAM, Me., Aug. 11.—Miss Mary McEachern of White Rock died suddenly of heart failure in the office of Dr. Moulton, dentist, here yesterday. She went to the office to have teeth extracted and collapsed as she was about to take her seat in the operating chair.

12 INDICTMENTS ARE KEPT SECRET

grand jury's consideration of the big cases. Among those who walked about the corridors of the big building were men who are active in political life and who were keenly interested in the report.

Foreman O'Toole made his appearance in the office of the District Attorney at 9:20 o'clock. He had with him a large book in which the cases that had been considered were recorded. He was accompanied by Hugh Doherty, the clerk of the Grand Jury.

Assistant District Attorney Dennison met the foreman and clerk, and they conferred together for about fifteen minutes. With Mr. Dennison looking on, Mr. O'Toole read the names of cases from the book, and Clerk Doherty made notes of them.

This was finished at 9:45 o'clock. Clerk Doherty then went into his private office and sat down at his typewriter and began to work. It is supposed that he was making out the lists of the secret indictments which had not been made known to him last evening.

INSPECTORS SENT OUT.

Immediately after this, Inspectors Armstrong and Wait, both of whom have been detailed to special work in connection with the Grand Jury, made their appearance. They held a low voiced conversation with Mr. Dennison and Foreman O'Toole, who appeared to be giving the Inspectors instructions. The inspectors left the building hurriedly at 9:55. It was the general impression that they had been dispatched to make arrests as a result of secret indictments that had been found.

The appearance of the inspectors and their quick exit after their consultation with Mr. Dennison and Foreman O'Toole gave rise to the report at once that indictments had been found in some of the District Attorney's special cases and that arrests were imminent.

The interest of the crowd that gathered in the corridors of the building increased and was soon transformed into considerable excitement. Many of those who were in the building crowded into the Superior Criminal Court room to hear the report of the Grand Jury read. It was said that the list of routine indictments would total between thirty and forty.

DAYLIGHT ROBBERS AMONG 60 INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

The Grand Jury of Suffolk County to-day returned sixty indictments for various crimes and offences and twenty returns of "no bill." True bills were returned against George W. Everson, Frederick Sacketti and Alfred H. Moore, who are charged with robbery, and a true bill against George W. Everson on charge of assault with intent to murder.

These men are the trio who on Saturday, July 28, walked into the office of Thomas Hickey, coal merchant, at No. 135 Cambridge street, Charlestown, and robbed him of about $200 in cash after overpowering him. In the bold dash for liberty, though pursued by several policemen, Everson shot Patrolman Herman Schiel in a desperate effort to regain his freedom, after being placed under arrest. Sacketti was captured at the same time, and he identified Moore, who was arrested several days later, as the third of the trio.

CALL GIRL IN CASE AGAINST DENTIST

Miss Emma Shaughnessy, a pretty brunette, of No. 115 Everett street, Brighton, was to-day called as the principal witness against Dr. Myron Barlow, late of Hotel Pelham, to be arraigned Monday next in the Municipal Criminal Court for conducting a dentistry parlor without having registered with the State Board of Dentistry. Miss Shaughnessy was an assistant in Dr. Barlow's office, and is supposed to know whether or not he posed as a full-fledged dentist.

GRAND ARMY MEN ARE OFF

A special train of nine cars drew out of North Station at 9:35 a. m. to-day, loaded with comrades of the Grand Army, their wives and members of the affiliated Civil War bodies, bound for the fortieth national encampment at Minneapolis, Minn. Another train followed at 11 o'clock, making the party number about 300 in all. The destination will be reached early Monday morning.

Acting Assistant Adjutant-General W. A. Wetherbee was in charge of the party. J. Payson Bradley, department commander and D. H. L. Gleason, senior vice-commander, together with a number of other officers, assisted in looking out for the details of the itinerary.

Adjutant General Wetherbee said the most important business of the encampment would be the election of officers. R. B. Brown of Ohio, he says, is a strong candidate for commander-in-chief to succeed Corporal Tanner, the present head.

WAKEFIELD TAX RATE $19.60.

The Board of Assessors for the town of Wakefield announce to-day that the tax rate for the ensuing year will be $19.60 per thousand. This is the same rate as the previous year.

58 DAYS have elapsed since the BOSTON AMERICAN filed with the Attorney-General a formal information and petition that he bring suit to force the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and the Boston & Albany Railroad to obey the law and to abandon the competing trolley lines which they have illegally acquired.

Why does the Attorney-General delay?

ALMOST A RIOT OVER BODY OF BANK TELLER

Angry Depositors in Looted Chicago Institution Accuse Dead Man of Theft.

POLICE DISPERSE CROWD

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Angry men and women depositors created a scene, verging on a riot, to-day at the home of Frank J. Kowalski, receiving teller, who committed suicide last night because his neighbors and friends accused him of concealing the real condition of the looted Milwaukee Avenue Bank.

An inquest was being conducted on Kowalski's remains when a large crowd gathered before the house. A Polish man and woman forced their way into the residence and into the room where the body lay. They denounced the dead man as they stood beside his body and shook their fists at it. The police forcibly ejected them from the house and a riot call was turned in.

The crowd outside, worked to a frenzied pitch, hooted and yelled denunciation upon the bank officials, while some dashed up to the door of the house and tore from the knob the crepe and a wreath of flowers, tearing the emblems of death into tatters and tramping them under foot.

The excitement grew to the proportions of a riot when a squad of police appeared, and with their clubs put to flight all the participants, while the Deputy Coroner proceeded with his duties. The bank examiner has found no evidence incriminating Kowalski.

Goaded to Death by Taunts.

Unable to withstand the taunts of neighbors, and crazed with the shame brought him by the failure of the Milwaukee Avenue State Bank, in which he was paying teller for five years, Frank Kowalski shot and instantly killed himself last night at his home after bitterly crying that he was treated unjustly.

The direct cause of his act was the accusation that he was responsible for the bank wreck, by a young woman friend on the street.

Third Death Due to Crash.

This is the third death resulting from the downfall of the bank. The other victims were depositors, one of whom dropped dead when he learned that the savings of a lifetime had been swept away.

Teller Kowalski had been employed at the bank for the last fourteen years, and he was not suspected by any who understood the conditions. He had his entire savings, $700, deposited in the bank, and his immediate relatives had $50,000 more. Cashier Hering, when he turned State's evidence, carefully explained that the irregularities were always carried on while Teller Kowalski was out at lunch.

Attorney Olson says that the loss will exceed $2,500,000. The officers are dumbfounded at the gigantic proportions of the fraud.

STENSLAND SEEN IN TEXAS, ON HIS WAY TO MEXICO

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 11.—Paul Stensland, the missing president of the Milwaukee Avenue State Bank of Chicago, was in Fort Worth yesterday.

According to Henry V. Adams, a former Chicago commission broker, he is on his way to Mexico. Adams said he travelled all the way from New Orleans to this city with the absconding banker, and did not know that his bank had failed.

Stensland told Adams he was going to Mexico on a pleasure trip.

PLAYER HIT IN GAME DIES AT HOSPITAL

Thomas F. Burke of this city, who was hit by a pitched ball Thursday in the Lynn-Fall River New England League game in Lynn, died in the Lynn Hospital shortly afternoon to-day, without having regained consciousness since he was hit. His skull had been fractured by the blow and a clot of blood had formed on the brain.

Mr. Burke was twenty-six years old, son of ex-Superintendent of Ferries William J. Burke, and lived at No. 119 Webster street, East Boston. A particularly pathetic feature of his death is that he was engaged to be married.

Mr. Burke was a lawyer, also an expert ball player. He was so fond of the game that he usually spent his Summers on the diamond. He hired on as left fielder with the Lynn team at the beginning of the season. Last Thursday the Fall Rivers came up to Lynn and a particularly hard-fought game was played Thursday at Ocean Park.

In the sixth inning Burke came to the bat and was hit on the head, just back of the left temple, by a ball pitched by Yeager. He fell unconscious and was taken to the hospital.

Pitcher Yeager has not been prosecuted, and the police say they will make no move against him as the tragedy was so obviously accidental.

The funeral of Mr. Burke will take place Monday or Tuesday, from the house, and the members of the Lynn Baseball Club will attend.

Itching Scalp, Dandruff and Falling Hair

THESE symptoms indicate a diseased condition of the scalp and always result in baldness if the condition is not corrected.

Every day adds to the number of men and women who have entirely lost their hair because of neglect. The hair can always be saved if proper treatment is administered in time, but after the hair roots are dead, renewed growth is impossible. Don't delay until the hair is all gone, for nothing will grow hair on a shiny bald head.

COPS MUST BE REAL NICE AND CUT OUT SLANG

Jawing Contests and Abuse-Fests Are Forbidden by O'Meara Ukase.

MORE EDICTS EXPECTED

And now the Boston cop must eschew abuse and slang and simply be a lovely gent.

In exonerating Patrolman Bill Farrell of the Broadway station from charges of abusive language Commissioner O'Meara hands out bulletin No. 3 in his famous series on "How to Be a Cop and How to Stay So."

No. 1 was "Don't Get Fat. No. 2, "Don't Gossip." And now comes No. 3, "Dont Be Abusive or Slangy." It is couched thus:

"Members of the department must keep their personal feelings for their personal affairs.' When representing law and preserving order they degrade themselves and their cause by entering a contest of slang or abuse."

So—if a teamster blocks the street the cop may not say: "Get a move on youse!" But he may be euphemistic like this: "Pardon, sir, would you kindly move your honorable team and permit traffic to traffic?"

How to Warn a "Lady."

If an intoxicated lady calls a cop a "wall-eyed mutt," he must lift his hat and merely murmur:

"Really, madam, I must protest. And I must ask you to refrain from such intensity of expression, else perforce I shall be constrained to apprehend you."

Then the lady will see the point and be silent. Probably she will drop dead, too.

In the good old days when it took two big cops like Ed Conway and Mike Kelly, patrolling in couples, to keep the South Cove from turning the town inside out, such airy, fairy graces would not avail. The only language that bunch understood was sledgehammer talk that was simple and direct. But now, in these glad days of higher culture, the cop must be a Chesterfield in manner and an Apollo Belvidere in form. Commissioner O'Meara is gradually licking his force into his ideal of what a cop should be.

He has scared the stout cops stiff by his anti-fat edict. His bulletin against gossiping has shut off talking so much that the pious cops hardly dare say their prayers out loud. Now they must shed the talk of the street and cultivate an Emersonian speech, neat but not gaudy. More orders are expected to this effect:

Some Orders Expected.

"In cases of extreme provocation an officer may murmur, "O, Screech!"

"Officers are requested to have their nails manicured."

"The commissioner will esteem it a favor if officers will wear silk stockings."

"Be euphemistic."

"Learn poetry. It refines the mind. The commissioner will gladly prescribe a course. Sonnets, madrigals and roundelays are preferable."

"If bumped by a trolley, apologize to the motorman."

"Officers with a nice taste in art can profitably spend their spare time decorating their clubs."

"Parting the hair in the middle lends distinction to the officer. This is merely suggested, however, not obligatory."

"Strive to be elegant and dilletante, rather than forcible and brusque."

"Study repose."

LONGWORTHS ON ST. PAUL ARE NEAR NEW YORK

Liner Reported by Wireless About 10 Miles From Nantucket Early To-day.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The American line steamer St. Paul, on board of which are Congressman Longworth and his wife, was reported by wireless telegraph as being ten miles west of Nantucket at 4 a. m. to-day. There is a dense fog. If it clears, the steamer is due to arrive at Sandy Hook about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Yacht Sylph to Meet Pair.

The Sylph left its moorings under the shadow of Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, to-day, to steam here for the purpose of bringing back Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, who are expected to arrive in New York harbor aboard the St. Paul about 2 p. m. The Sylph will meet the St. Paul at quarantine, and if the liner is on schedule time the President's daughter and her husband will arrive home by 4 p. m.

No special preparations are being made for the Longworths' visit, but the President's family and the near relatives are looking forward with great pleasure to the family reunion. By sending the Sylph for Mr. and Mrs. Longworth the President will spare them the enthusiatic greetings of the crowds in New York and Long Island City, as well as the friendly effusiveness of the Oyster Bay townspeople, who were preparing to turn out in force to welcome them.

When the village folk learned to-day that they would not be able to see the Longworths at the station they were grievously disappointed.

Short Stay at Oyster Bay.

Although no definite plans have been made for the Longworths' departure for the West, it is understood they do not contemplate remaining at Oyster Bay longer than two or three days. They will therefore probably take a train for Washington about Monday or Tuesday, and some time later will proceed to Cincinnati.

Although "Nick" probably does not stand in immediate need of the change, it is quite likely that he will visit the capitol soon after reaching Washington to collect $1,000 congressional salary which has been accumulating since his departure for Europe.

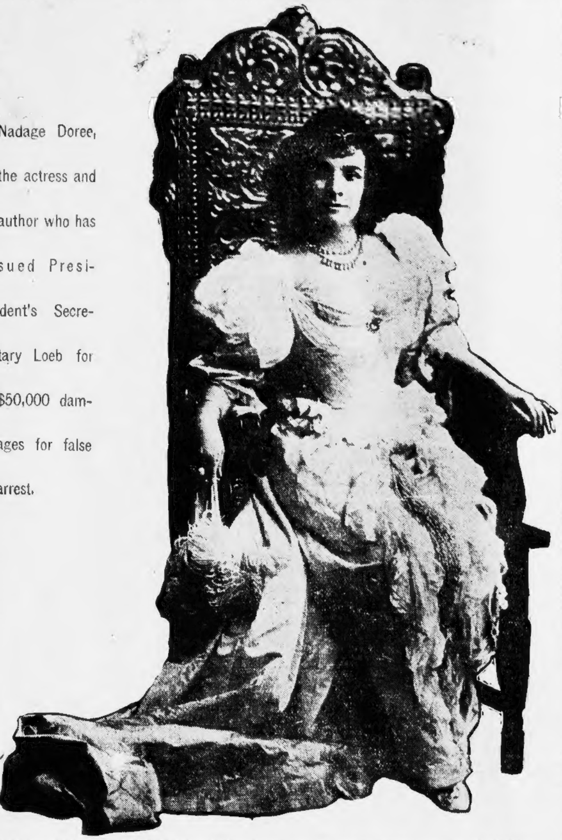
AUTHORESS TO PROSECUTE LOEB TO LIMIT OF THE LAW



Nadage Doree, the actress and author who has sued President's Secretary Loeb for $50,000 damages for false arrest.

Miss Doree, Who Sues Roosevelt's Secretary for $50,000, Means Business.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Nadage Doree, the famous actress and authoress, who has brought suit for $50,000 against William Loeb, Jr., private secretary to President Roosevelt, charging him with having had her arrested when she was in Washington to solicit the President's intervention in behalf of the suffering and persecuted Jews in Russia, to-day declared that she would push legal action to the limit.

Yesterday, after a year's unavailing effort, service of the papers upon Secretary Loeb was secured. For twelve months the President's private secretary had dodged the officers of the law, protected by guards and secret service men. He had used the President's own body guard to shield himself.

Miss Nadage Doree, whose real name is Goldberg, is the author of several works depicting the horrors of the persecution of the Jews in Russia. In a leaflet entitled "Jesus's Christianity, by a Jewess," she makes a personal appeal to the President in the following language:

Serving of the Papers.

"Mr. President Roosevelt, read my book, 'Jesus's Christianity, by a Jewess.' It will help inspire you to do your Christian duty.

"If your youngest son were seized and thrown into a bonfire and burned alive—if your daughter, Miss Alice, were bayoneted by a Russian Christian mob, would you hesitate or remain silent? This is a righteous cause which concerns the welfare of all mankind."

The papers were served at the "Little White House," over Moore's grocery store at Oyster Bay, by a clerk in the office of K. Henry Rosenberg of No. 63 Park row. Mr. Rosenberg is Miss Doree's counsel.

Miss Doree's story, as set forth in the complaint, is as follows:

Always Got Same Answer.

Miss Doree went to the White House last October and asked Mr. Loeb for an interview with the President. She stated that she wished to urge upon the Executive the need of a message to Congress asking that it take official cognizance of the outrages perpetrated against the Jews by the Russian Government.

Mr. Loeb told her that the President was too busy to see her that day. She called on several occasions and got always the same answer.

Then she determined to urge Mrs. Roosevelt to intervene in her behalf. On Sunday morning, October 16, she visited St. John's Church, in Washington, whither Mrs. Roosevelt went every Sunday to worship. Here she intended to make her plea publicly. She took with her several messenger boys, who distributed circulars to the congregation, but detectives had been hastened to the church and she was arrested before she got inside the building.

Bundled Into Patrol Wagon.

Although no warrant has been procured for her, she declares, she was put into a patrol wagon, taken to the House of Detention and detained for twenty-eight hours without food. She was liberated only after she had promised to leave the city within twenty-four hours.

Miss Doree swears in her complaint that she was very roughly used by the police, and that they tore her clothing, and carried her through the streets, as they would a common malefactor, in a police van. As a result of this treatment she avers she was ill for two weeks.

She also accuses the Rev. Roland C. Smith, the pastor of St. John's, with having been a party to the indignities inflicted on her. Later Miss Doree will sue the pastor, she asserts.

HARVARD SHELL BARELY ESCAPES A SMASHUP

OARSMEN'S PROMPT RESPONSE TO ORDERS OF COXSWAIN PREVENTS ACCIDENT.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Harvard's eight came within an ace of losing their shell last evening and a serious smashup was narrowly averted by the prompt response of the oarsmen to the Crimson coxswain's command. While the boat was hitting the stroke up to a thirty a minute clip after having got well started on a three-minute spin, a pleasure skiff shot past one end of Bour End Bridge as the visiting crew was shooting out. The many spectators on the river bank held their breath for the instant, for it looked as though the Harvard shell would be smashed. By backing water and putting every effort into stopping the shell the Harvard men barely averted the accident. Had the frail boat been smashed it is probable that an English style boat would have to be used and these boats being some six feet longer there may have been a noticeable difference in the result.

Two Crews Alike.

The more serious part of the training will begin on Wednesday, when both squads go down to Putney.

The close resemblance between the style and action of the two crews has become more noticeable as the shells are seen on the river simultaneously. That a first-class English crew has at last got an American rival to approach its best standard is creating the greatest interest in the race.

The English rowing critics undoubtedly regard it as a great compliment to the American visitors when they say that they are the best drilled and most powerful crew that has ever visited them from these shores, as when they declare that Harvard is the acme of the English style they make an acknowledgment that shows the general belief that a great race will be seen when the two come together.

In conversation with R. C. Lehmann yesterday, who formerly coached Harvard, Mr. Lehmann informed your correspondent of his belief that the Harvard men are the most powerful set of oarsmen physically that he has ever seen. He would not give his opinion on the probable result of the race, but was strong in his declaration that the two crews were the best he had ever seen in action.

"We should have a great race" he said. "There is no doubt in my mind but that the Harvard men will soon become acclimated. I think at the most it should not take more than a month. Of course it acts differently on different people, but that is the outside."

Several of the boys are beginning to take on weight. The principal offenders in this line are Dan Newhall and Richardson.

Both crews now go on the river twice daily and are beginning to increase their pace in each practice.

The Harvard boat is not improving as yet in their rowing. They do not keep the boat on an even keel and send it along with an enormous jerk that should be eliminated by this time. There also seems to be an unaccountable drag at the end of the stroke. Coach Wray does not seem to fear these points, however, and continues to bend his energy towards other divisions at present.

MRS. GOULD IN BALLOON RACE

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Mrs. Howard Gould, simultaneously with her election as a member of the Aero Club of the United Kingdom, yesterday received an invitation to be a guest of the great international balloon race which takes place next month in Paris, the start being made from the Tulleries.

"I have accepted the invitation," said Mrs. Gould. "I shall go up in a balloon and will follow the racers for a distance."

Ever since her first ascension last May Mrs. Gould has taken much interest in ballooning. That ascension was made at London on May 18 in a big balloon named the Dolce Far Niente. She was accompanied then by Lord Royston, professor of Huntington, and Frank Butler, the owner of the balloon. The trip was only a short one of some twenty miles, but Mrs. Gould was delighted.

'GHOST' CRAFT STILL IN HARBOR

The "Holy Ghost and Us" barkentine, Rebecca Crowell, is still lying at anchor in Boston harbor, just off Long Island light, undergoing repairs. The air of mystery which has hung around the trim little craft is still maintained by those on board the vessel.

William Fenderson, who is in charge of the "Elim," Nos. 545 and 547 Massachusetts avenue, the Boston headquarters of the "Holy Ghost and Us" society, to-day denied the many rumors concerning the destination of the barkentine. He said:

"The Rebecca Crowell is not bound for the Holy Land. She is here on a short recreation trip given our followers each year. When she leaves she will return to Maine."

BATTLEFLAG JUNKET MEETS MAYOR'S FAVOR

It Will Appease Some of the Disappointed Ones on the Lighting Committee.

ON TO NEW ORLEANS, NOW

Members of the joint special committee of the City Council appointed for the alleged purpose of investigating municipal ownership of lighting plants, were wroth to-day when learning that Mayor Fitzgerald had finally decided that there would be no junket of the committee.

A few of the members found consolation in the promise that they would be taken care of in the appointment of the special committee of five members of the Common Council, and three members of the Board of Aldermen, which is to convey back to New Orleans the Confederate flag, taken from New Orleans City Hall in 1862, and presented by General Butler to the city of Boston.

Awaiting Mayor's Sanction.

The order for the appointment of this committee is now held up in the committee on public improvements, where it will be held until the Mayor's sanction to the proposed trip is obtained. Members of the City Council have been somewhat fearful that the Mayor would refuse to allow the junket to the Southern city, but Alderman William Berwin, who claims New Orleans as his birthplace, it is stated, obtained from the Mayor Wednesday a definite promise that he would approve the bills for such a trip.

Alderman Berwin, who is a member of the so-called municipal lighting committee, pointed out to the Mayor that this would be a good way out of the difficulty over the lighting committee junket. The public, Alderman Berwin said, had no faith in the alleged lighting investigation, and any trip by that committee would be looked upon as a wanton waste of public funds. Now, Alderman Berwin stated, something had to be done to appease the fellows on the lighting committee who have been most clamorous for a junket, and who, unless their demands were complied with, would make trouble for the Mayor when the report of the committee was made.

Bell May Oppose Junket.

The order for the New Orleans junket, it is understood, will be opposed by Alderman Bell, who maintains that the flag should be boxed up and expressed back and the resolutions offered by Colonel Doherty of East Boston sent by mail. Alderman Berwin is deeply pained at the suggestion of the Dorchester Alderman, and says that such an action by the city of his adoption toward the city of his nativity would be insulting.

Since Alderman Berwin sprang his coup in the Board of Aldermen by announcing that he was a native of New Orleans, no less than seven members of the Common Council have made the same claim, and if all those are appointed on the committee who claim to be natives of the Crescent City, the junket will take the nature of an "old home week" celebration.

WILL PROLONG TROLLEY STRIKE

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 11.—Vice President Sheehan of Brockton addressed a meeting of the striking carmen last night, the principal business of which was the planning for collections at the mill gates to-day. The strikers are determined to prolong the strike, arguing that so long as the Union Street Railway is on the unfair list there is a chance of winning positions for a number of members now on the blacklist.

Several of the younger men who were in the union and who have gone back are twelve and fifteen points ahead on the list by the strike.

12 INJURED IN MONON WRECK

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Twelve persons were injured, some of them seriously, and many persons were shaken up and bruised early to-day in the wreck of a Monon train from Cincinnati.

The train was crowded with sports returning from the Herman-Yanger fight in Indianapolis, and struck a broken rail near Rensselaer, Ind., at 5:20 o'clock and was derailed while running at a high rate of speed.

The engine was overturned and all the cars except the three sleepers were dragged from the track and bumped along over the road bed for several hundred feet before they came to a stop.

REPORT ABDUL HAMID DYING

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 11.—A persistent rumor is current to-day that the Sultan, Abdul Hamid II., is dying. No official bulletins in regard to his condition have been issued.

Information that the Sultan was ill was contained in dispatches received in this country last night. A report from Vienna said word had reached there from Constantinople that the indisposition of the Sultan had made it necessary to cancel yesterday's Selamlik. It was also stated it would be necessary for the Sultan to undergo a surgical operation, and one report had it that he had already been operated upon.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE IS FORMED IN HOLYOKE

MOVEMENT SPREADS TO PAPER CITY AND IS HEARTILY ENDORSED.

Special to the Boston American.

HOLYOKE, Mass., Aug. 11.—At a very enthusiastic meeting in La France hall last night the Holyoke Independence League was launched. Despite the heavy showers there were between fifty and sixty present and the discussion was spirited. Many of those present were members of the Wage Earners' Club, and at the close of the meeting thirty-one signed the roll of league membership.

Urban Fleming was elected president of the League and William Moran secretary. They, with G. H. Harris, Frank Major and N. D. Ingram were chosen the executive committee. William N. Osgood of Lowell, made the principal address. The other speakers were President R. A. Hennessey and Secretary T. L. Hisgen of the Springfield League.

President Fleming is the head of the Central Labor Union and of the the Wage Earners. He said he thought the time was ripe for an Independence League in Massachusetts and while a hearty supporter of the Wage Earners' Club, believed the League would further their cause. He predicted a lusty league organization in Holyoke in a few days.

Secretary Moran, one of the best known of the younger labor leaders of Holyoke spoke in a vein similar to President Fleming.

"Dollar Now Above Man."

Mr. Osgood's speech made a fine impression. He clearly showed how the Independence League would work reforms desired by organized labor and opponents of Trust and lobby control of legislation. He said in part:

"Independence Leagues are being formed throughout the country. They are already strong in the great States of New York, Illinois, Indiana, and are being rapidly formed in Massachusetts. The people are at last alive to the necessity of political organization. We have party machinery for the benefit of a few selfish individuals and classes of special privileges, but we have never had in this country in the past, in the true sense, a permanent organization of the people for political action.

"The present conditions are such that popular organization is demanded. The people have lost control over their own government in nation, State and municipality. The ideas of Hamilton, expressed in centralization and imperialism are dominant, while the ideas of Jefferson and Lincoln and the principles of popular government are for the time forgotten or lost sight of. We ar controlled by a kind of aristocracy, placing the dollar far above the man, when man should receive at least equal consideration. It cannot seem very radical or unreasonable to demand at least equal consideration for the man.

"What is the cause of this condition of things? The real cause is the indifference on the part of the people themselves. They have slumbered while their representatives have delegated to private interests public functions. Eternal vigilance is just as much the price of liberty now as it was in the old colonial days. Consequently the citizen must arouse himself and control his representative at all times and hold him accountable not only upon election day, but on all other days. We can only do this by organizing, organizing, organizing. Individually we can do little or nothing. United, we can accomplish much.

"The Independence League desires and urgently seeks the co-operation of labor organizations. Labor organizations should co-operate with us. Indeed, all who believe in the declaration of principles common to both the League and the American Federation of Labor should work together.

"There cannot be too many political organizations of citizens devoted to the public welfare and the institutions under which we live. All who believe in the theory of popular government should welcome the formation of any number of such organizations.

"A great responsibility rests upon labor organizations, to keep up the great movement now under way in behalf of popular government throughout the country. No greater or more important work can be done by any of us.

"No Change in Theory."

"To achieve good results it is not necessary to advocate any radical change in our institutions, or to change the theory upon which our government is formed. The only change needed is to destroy the radical forces that now direct our government and place therein the conservative and sovereign people. Restore to them the power which is theirs by every right, the power of self-government.

"That is the object of the Independence League. Can there be any more grand or inspiring work for us to undertake?"

Mr. Hisgen's story of Standard Oil tricks was attentively listened to. His comparison of the Oil Trust and the cheap laborer who refuses to join a union made a hit. One tries to crush out fair prices by under selling competitors so that they are driven from the field, and the other by selling cheaply his labor, works injury to the hope of fair wages and fair hours.

A number of those present asked questions relative to the purpose of the league which were answered by Mr. Osgood. The meeting closed with a thorough understanding that every signer of the roll would work earnestly to swell the membership. Pledges were distributed to members and from now on the distribution in the Paper City will be general.

CALLS FOR $1 CONTRIBUTIONS BY DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Chairman Griggs of the Democratic Congressional Committee has sent out many thousand circulars calling for $1 subscriptions from Democrats throughout the country, the money to be used for the coming campaign. The circular says:

"Now is the Time."

"To the Democratic voters: If there ever was a time in the history of the Democratic party for a manifestation of loyalty and patriotism on the part of its members, it is right now. If we are to win a victory and elect a President two years hence, we must first elect a House of Representatives this Fall.

"A Democratic House can and will investigate every department of the government. With all these honeycombed with 'graft,' the edges of which only have been touched by recent exposures and prosecutions, there will be a revelation of rottenness that will astound the country, and create a demand for a Democratic administration to clean the government workshop.

Must Have Money.

"To win the house we need money to defray legitimate expenses to get our vote. We have no protected monopolies from which to draw to fill our coffers, as they do those of the Republican party. We must, therefore, appeal to loyal Democrats for contributions.

"Will you send us $1 at once, and in return for this we will send you copies of our campaign literature, issued by the committee. You will have the thanks of the entire Democratic party for your favorable response to our request. Address all remittances to J. M. Griggs, Washington, D. C."

LYNCHER GETS 15 YEARS' LABOR

SALISBURY, N. C., Aug. 11.—What is said to be the first conviction of a lyncher in the history of the State was furnished last night, when George Hall, a white ex-convict of Montgomery county, North Carolina, was found guilty. He was one of the party that on Monday night lynched three negroes in jail for the murder of the Lyerly family.

Judge Long sentenced Hall to the maximum term—fifteen years at hard labor in the penitentiary. His counsel has appealed.

GET 30 DAYS FOR STEALING TROLLEY FARES

Special to the Boston American.

LYNN, Aug. 11.—After hearing the arguments for and against Conductor Frank I. Murray, charged with retaining fifty-five cents in fares from the Boston & Northern Street Railway Company, Judge Berry to-day sentenced the defendant to thirty days in the House of Correction.

With the pronouncing of the sentence it developed that Murray was not in court. He has been out on $100 bonds, and it is thought that he has defaulted.

Attorney Mayo for the defendant appealed the case. In the meantime the police are on the watch for Murray.

United States District Attorney Asa P. French of Boston appeared for the Boston & Northern, and several sharp tilts between the two attorneys resulted.

The sentence was given upon the request of Attorney French. He stated that "jail sentence alone was adequate to meet this case, and would serve as an example and warning to other conductors."

MORAN PLEASED BY APPROVAL OF WHITNEY

District Attorney Says Position of Both on the Tariff Is Identical.

DEFIES MACHINE TRICKS

District Attorney John B. Moran is greatly pleased at the statement by Henry M. Whitney, approving Mr. Moran's candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

In a morning paper Mr. Whitney is reported to have said: "They are telling me it is my duty to stand for the cause which I believe means so much to Massachusetts, but I would rather work for it as a business man than as a political candidate. I never made a political speech before last year.

"Moran's Popularity Growing."

"I do not think Mr. Moran will withdraw. He seems to be growing in popularity, and I hope that the Democratic party will not divide over the question of his candidacy."

This was shown to Mr. Moran today he said: "This quotation in a morning paper is of course very pleasing to me. It indicates that Mr. Whitney, the leading Massachusetts exponent of reciprocity, recognizes the fact that public sentiment in favor of my candidacy cannot be ignored.

"If Mr. Whitney has read my platform, and I have no doubt he has, he knows that my position on the tariff is identical with his own.

"To oppose my nomination is to oppose my platform.

"No believer in reciprocity will do either.

Would Set Them Against Each Other.

"Certain political self-seekers whose political conduct has been in the past publicly criticised by me are now trying to induce Mr. Whitney to fight me in the hope that we may destroy each other.

"They love him as they love me, and they demonstrate their affection by the use of the political stiletto, handled in the dark and from behind.

"Mr. Whitney is wise in his determination not to enter the contest against me. It would mean certain defeat for him."

ELOPES WITH AN EX-PRIEST

Love for a former priest, who appeared suddenly at her home and suggested an elopement, was stronger to pretty Josephine Farhetti, the belle of the Italian colony at West Quincy, than the objections of her parents or anyone else, so she eloped.

Her sweetheart, Gaetano Salvucci of New York, had while a priest presided over the parish which she attended in Naples. He is now a wealthy business man in New York. In trying to find the girl's home he lost his way, mistaking West Lynn for West Quincy, and did not reach the latter place until after midnight. The girl was asleep, but they were soon headed for New York, and evaded the angry parents and boarders who chased them.

"BRIGHTER SIDE" ON THE STAGE. ACTRESS FOUND "DARKER SIDE" IN BRIEF EXPERIENCE AS WIFE

HER "WEDDED BLISS" WAS SHORT, SHE SAYS

ALICE LONNON, FORMERLY OF BOSTON, SAYS IN DIVORCE ACTION, HUSBAND WAS CRUEL.

Though they played "The Brighter Side" together in the Tremont Theatre in Boston and have taken several other parts in the same theatrical companies with every indication from behind the footlights that things were just as they seemed to be, Harry Gittns Lonsdale, the actor and husband of charming, fair-haired Alice Lonnon, whose name off the stage is Alice Perkins Lonsdale, has been served with a libel for divorce.

None of "The Brighter Side" is depicted in the charges which the pretty woman files against her actor husband, who is well known here by reason of his having spent considerable time in Boston some few years ago when he conducted theatrical entertainments at the Rockland House at Nantasket.

Alice Lonnon, or Mrs. Lonsdale, is in San Francisco at present and it is from there that the divorce proceedings emanated. She charges Lonsdale with extreme cruelty, abusive treatment and intemperance, all of which qualities he did not show in "The Brighter Side," nor did she herself indicate that there was any dark side to her life, either professional or domestic—all of which goes to show that the footlights sometimes hide as well as reveal things.

Alice Lonnon is one of the prettiest women on the American stage to-day. She married Lonsdale in March, 1899, and her married life has been anything but blissful, if her libel is accurate. She declares that her husband has been cruel to her and that one time he went so far as to even attempt to break her pretty neck. Now she is in Southern California and awaiting the opening of the coming theatrical season, and at the same time a decree from the courts which will give her freedom from the thrall of matrimonial bonds, which she says are irksome and intolerable.

According to the libel, Lonsdale and Miss Lonnon were married on March 12, 1899. The sweet part of the honeymoon, she alleges, was very brief. She avers that between May 31 and September 1 of that first year of what would ordinarily be characterized as "wedded bliss," her husband was abusive to her.

She accuses him of opening and reading some 300 or 400 sealed letters addressed to her. Some of these letters sympathized with her for the alleged ill-treatment to which she was subjected and this did not make the matrimonial venture any more pleasureable. The breach was widening and at a great rate.

Alice Lonnon left Lonsdale in 1900, alleging continued abuse and mistreatment. She accuses him of drinking more than his share of liquor and of humiliating her, and of gambling. She says that he telegraphed to her family for money, despite the fact that none of them were earning good salaries.

In Newark she says that one time he accused her of not being a good wife to him, and that he pushed her over a chair, nearly breaking her neck. She declares that Lonsdale even went so far as to threaten to kill her.

SINCLAIR IS FREED, ONLY TO BE REARRESTED

Acquitted on Forgery Charge, But Held on Accusations of Larceny.

MADE HIS OWN DEFENSE

L. Walter Sinclair, arrested on Thursday by Inspector Daniel McKay in Quincy on a charge of forgery, and whose trial was continued until to-day, was discharged on that charge by Judge Avery in the Quincy District Court, but was immediately confronted with charges of larceny preferred by George L. Raymond, a guest at the New Quincy House, where Sinclair has been stopping, and by T. Williams, a jeweler of Quincy.

Sinclair was not represented by an attorney, but he defended himself very ably. On the first of the larceny charges he was convicted by Judge Avery and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction, but he appealed and was held for the Grand Jury in $500 bond. On the second charge of larceny he was held in $300 bond, neither of which he has furnished.

Sinclair, who has been living with his wife at the New Quincy House for over a week, was interested in promoting a carbon paper company, along with two other men, who have disappeared since his arrest on Thursday.

They had secured offices at No. 7 Adams Block, Hancock street. Last Wednesday Raymond missed a ring which he had placed in a bureau drawer in his room. Inquiry among the different jewelers revealed his property at Williams' store, where it had been brought to be cut down in size.

Sinclair, who had been arrested on charges of passing worthless checks and forgery, was identified by Williams as the man who brought him Raymond's ring. Williams had had a previous experience with Sinclair as the latter had secured a gold watch from him to sell, and had left a check for $7.50 drawn on the Wollaston National Bank of Quincy as a deposit. Williams, it is alleged, found the check was worthless.

FINED $25 FOR ROW AT HANDBALL GAME

Charles Garler of Charlestown was fined $25 in the Charlestown Police Court to-day on the charge of assault and battery upon Patrick J. McGlinchy, as a result of a dispute over a handball match in the Sullivan Square play grounds yesterday. Garler appealed and was held in $200.

THOMAS J. LANE DIES OF CANCER

Thomas J. Lane, a member of the board of bath trustees of Boston since the establishment of the board in 1898, and chairman until he resigned last Monday, died at his Summer home at Weymouth Heights to-day.

Mr. Lane had been in bad health for some time, suffering from a cancer of the stomach. He was an undertaker, and lived at No. 120 Havre street, East Boston. He was fifty-three years of age and leaves a wife and eight children. The funeral will be held from his late residence Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

HEARST WINS IN NIAGARA

LOCKPORT, N.Y., Aug. 11.—The Niagara County Democratic committee adopted resolutions yesterday favoring the nomination of William Randolph Hearst for Governor. All the prominent Democratic leaders of Niagara county were there, and all stood a unit for Hearst. It was predicted that he would carry Niagara by a safe majority, the normal Republican majority being 2,200.

Two Days of Solid Fun at Wonderland Is Free to All

Tickets Will Appear in Sunday American, Good for Monday and Tuesday Amusements at Park.

If you want to journey to Wonderland; if you want to see the best Wild West Show which has ever been produced; if you want to see some of the cleverest horseback riders in the world; if you want to see a young woman—the only one in the country who dares to ride untamed bucking bronchos; if you want to see the Indians do their war dances just as they do them on the plains of the West; if you want to witness the feats of the greatest sharp shooter in the world; and if you would like to see all these things free; then buy to-morrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN and cut out the coupons which will entitle you to admission to beautiful Wonderland, and admission to the great Wild West Show—thirty-five cents' worth of attractions, all for nothing.

The coupons will be good on Monday and Tuesday, either afternoon or evening, and you can take the children and make one glorious day of it down by the ocean, enjoy the benefit of the cooling breezes from the sea, and when evening comes the head of the house can join his merry family for the evening's pleasures.

No End of Enjoyment.

Wonderland presents everything that could be asked for in the way of amusement. There is nothing lacking for the enjoyment of everyone. The big park—the size of Dreamland and Luna Park at Coney Island combined—covers twenty-six acres of ground, and while the band plays one may sit upon the benches of the boardwalks and enjoy their home-made luncheon. Then, too, there is McDonald's Wonderland restaurant, which is accommodating thousands of people daily. To-morrow Poole's orchestra will play during the evening hours, while vocal selections will be rendered by a young woman.

On Monday, when the BOSTON AMERICAN'S guests will be present at the "Wild West" show the newest feature of all will be introduced to thrill the spectators. F. A. Bennett, considered the world's most wonderful sharp-shooter, arrived yesterday from Oklahoma for an engagement at the park. He will give exhibitions of sharp shooting at every presentation of the Wild West Show. Offers of hundreds of dollars have been made by managements of parks where he has given exhibitions to anyone who could equal his feats with the rifle. No one has yet come forward to make a contest for the money.

Daring Woman Rider.

Besides Sharp Shooter Bennett, Miss Annie Schaffer will continue next week to thrill the crowds with her daring riding of untamed bucking bronchos. "Wild" Bill Kennedy, the manager of the Wild West Show, offers a thousand dollars to any person who will ride one of the bucking bronchos which Miss Schaffer tackles at each performance, and he has been unable to find any body up to date who wants to try for the money.

Miss Schaffer is one of the cleverest women riders in the country, and the nerve she displays in riding a different broncho every night is considered wonderful by the most expert cowboy riders.

Directly opposite to the Wild West Show across the lagoon, is Hell Gate. This show is one of the most novel in the park. A strong water current carries the boats containing six people into the regions below, and after travelling around a winding course in what appears to be a cave, the boat suddenly darts down the incline toward Hell Gate. All the visions of the earth's centre are wonderfully reproduced. You leave the boat while still in Hades and walk about, and within a moment you are outside again, facing the Shoot the Chutes.

The Chutes at Wonderland are the highest and most carefully constructed in the country. Expert men handle the boats coming down the incline, and there isn't the slightest danger, although as the boats fly down the rails, by actual timing, they attain a speed of over two miles a minute.

CAMPANIA IN FIRST IN RACE

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The Cunard liner Campania and the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria had a close race all the way from the banks of Newfoundland to port, and the Campania won, reaching quarantine first to-day.

There was a heavy fog off the banks and Captain Warr ordered reduced speed last Wednesday night. At daylight the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria was discovered, forging ahead through the fog. Not to be outdone, Captain Warr ordered full speed again, and on Friday passed the German vessel, maintaining the lead until reaching quarantine to-day.

SIX HURT ON DESTROYER

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 11.—Six men were burned by an explosion in the paint locker of the torpedo boat destroyer Worden at the Norfolk Navy Yard yesterday. Hot steel fell into some varnish, and two men were blown to the deck above. William Wilson, one of these men, may die. The destroyer was practically uninjured.

HEART ON RIGHT, GIRL REFUSES $10,000 FOR IT

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Alive after her heart had jumped from the left to the right side of her body, never ill a day since, although always in poor health before, Lillian Moog, twenty-five years of age, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Catherine Young of No. 564 East One Hundred and Fifty-fourth street, has so interested physicians that she has been offered $10,000 to bequeath her body at death to the medical world. She refuses to do so, however.

It was three years ago that Miss Moog made the startling discovery that her heart suddenly had switched to her right side, without any pain or feeling to her. Instead of being a weak, sickly girl, she rapidly developed into a tall, strong, healthy young woman.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

All engineers employed at the City Hospital have been granted an increase in wages and the eight-hour day, as requested, it was reported as last night's meeting of Stationary Engineers' Union No. 16. A committee was appointed to wait on the management of the Orpheum Theatre, formerly the Empire, and request that they sign the union agreement.

It was announced that thousands of invitations had been sent out to engineers, union and non-union, to attend the mass meeting under the auspices of Union No. 16 in Faneuil Hall, September 12. It is expected that Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, or John Mitchell, will be one of the speakers.

The purpose of the meeting will be the organization of the unorganized engineers in Boston. The committee points out that sixty-five per cent. of the membership of the union has the eight-hour workday; that one-third of the members receive $21 a week in wages, and many individuals get more, and that these men are working under signed contracts that give them rights not had by the non-union engineer.

CIGARMAKERS ELECT.

Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 voted as follows last night for seventh international vice-president: Bloom, Oakland, Cal., 24; De Bell, Providence, 16; Hall, Minneapolis, 6; Fitzgerald, Portland, Ore., ; Putnam, Norfolk, Va., 4; Steinmiller, Hartford, 2.

President James Blyth, Vice-President Thomas J. Holmes and Secretary-Treasurer Jack Lipp were chosen to attend the complimentary banquet to Frank K. Foster next Wednesday night at the Quincy House. A delegation from Typographical Union No. 13 addressed the meeting.

KICKHAM WELL FITTED.

Patrick R. Kickham of Roxbury, who has been appointed a member of the commission to revise the building laws for the city of Boston by Mayor Fitzgerald, has been a member of Boston Carpenters' Union No. 33 for twenty-seven years. Thirty-three years ago he began working at the trade and for the past twenty years has been a foreman. He is a past president of Carpenters' Union No. 33, one of the oldest labor organizations in the country.

WELLS AND UNION LINEMEN.

President M. A. Murphy of Electrical Workers' Union No. 104 (Linemen) has issued a statement for the purpose of placing Fire Commissioner Wells in a clear light regarding the recent trouble regarding non-union men. The non-union men in the department, he states, were there when Mr. Wells took the office fifteen months ago. Under his administration none but union men have been hired. The union, concludes President Murphy, is deeply indebted to Mr. Wells for the courtesy and favors he has shown committees from the union.

LABOR NOTES.

Superintendent Leahy of the sewer department has instructed Superintendent O'Shea of the Calf Pasture Pumping Station, to allow the five machinists employed there two weeks' vacation each.

W. E. Plunkett, treasurer of the Berkshire Manufacturing Company, held a conference with the striking weavers, and it is hoped, at a meeting to be held to-day, that a settlement will be reached.

The strike at the Waltham bleachery, which has been on for more than ten weeks' has been ended by mutual compromises, the employes getting a 5 per cent. increase.

The girl employed on the platers in the government paper mill in Coltsville, have won their strike against the manufacturers of bank note paper, and have been granted an increase of 10 cents a day.

The emergency committee of the United Textile Workers Union expects that the strike of the cotton mill operatives of the Edwards corporation at Augusta, Me., will be prolonged.

Piano and Furniture Movers' Union has voted $10 to the George E. McNeil memorial fund.

Hatters' Union No. 6 has nominated William Wixted as delegate and J. Dowd as alternate for the election of delegates to the State Branch, A. F. of L. convention by the United Hatters' executive board next week.

A special meeting of Bakers' Union No. 4 has been called for to-night at No. 724 Washington street.

An invitation has been received by Painters' Union No. 11 from the Union Congregational Church, Columbus avenue and West Newton street, to attend a labor service there the Sunday before Labor Day. The Rev. Samuel L. Loomis will deliver a special sermon on "Labor."

NO DANCING AT CHAUTAUQUA

LEBANON, Pa., Aug. 11.—In sympathy with the United Brethren Camp Meeting Association, which has tabooed dancing, the managers of the Pennsylvania Chautauqua have voted unanimously to refuse permission for similar diversion at Mt. Gretna at any time.

BOY HELD IN FIRE BY MATES

With his legs and feet badly burned, Max Goldberg, a six-year-old boy, of No. 14 Seventh street, was taken to the Cambridge Relief Hospital for treatment where he is to-day resting comfortably.

The story told is that some older companions built a bonfire in a vacant lot, and, tired of watching it burn, seized little Max and held him in the fire while he screamed and struggled in terrible agony.

His screams finally are believed to have frightened them away, while Max was left to his suffering.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Boston, Aug. 11.—Boston and St. Louis lined up in a double-header at the South End grounds to-day. It was the last appearance of both teams in this city for some time, as after to-day's battles the Bostons go to Pittsburg, while the Cardinals chase back to their own bailiwick.

There will be no more big baseball games in this city until next Wednesday, when the Pilgrims return home for a series with the Chicagos. Probably this was the reason for the big house at the local park this afternoon, or maybe the two games for one admission, and the knowledge that the first two games between the clubs were close affairs, attracted the big multitude of fans to the Walpole street park.

At any rate, the fans were there, and the weather being about right for baseball, they stripped off their outer garments and sat back in their seats prepared to enjoy an afternoon of solid fun.

A great deal of attention was paid to the manoeuvres of Manager Jack McCloskey of the Cardinals, who sat on the bench twitting and fretting like a hungry sparrow. Moreover, the fans got enjoyment listening to some of his exclamations, which would look rather strong in print.

Tenney was back in the game, President Soden having received word from Harry Pulliam that the Hub Manager had been reinstated.

COTE BEAT KENNEY.

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 11.—Arthur Cote of Biddeford was given the decision over Young Kenney of Lowell at the end of a fifteen-round bout here last night.

GOLDFIELD TO MAKE HOLIDAY OUT OF FIGHT

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Aug. 11.—Tex Rickard, the promoter, sold 700 ringside $25 seats up to 10 o'clock this morning for Goldfield alone. Every woman in this town will be in attendance, also from the surrounding mining camps of Nevada, Montana and Wyoming.

It is now planned to have a bull fight here on the morning preceding the contest, and two bull fighters are now on their way from Juarez, Mex.

The "Battler" has arrived here and will put in three weeks of hard training. He is supremely confident of the outcome of this finish battle.

Gans must weigh 133 pounds at any of three times on the day of the contest, namely: 12 noon, 1:30 p. m. and 2 p. m. At the latter hour the fight will begin.

Thousands of dollars have already been waged in this camp, and the betting promises to exceed that on any similar event that ever happened.

HERMAN WAS VICTOR OVER BENNY YANGER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 11.—The opening ten-round mill between Kid Herman and Benny Yanger at the baseball park last night was witnessed by the largest crowd that was ever drawn together by a boxing contest in this city. Yanger and Herman were both at weight, 133 pounds, and both supremely confident when they entered the ring. Yanger announced that he would force the mill from the start and would travel at a faster pace than he ever before attempted, while Herman promised not to give any ground, depending upon his great defence to keep him out of harm's way.

In Yanger's corner when the fight opened were the two Dave Barrys and Jerry Ellis, while Ray Bronson and Adam Ryan were in Herman's corner. Epstein and Curley were timekeepers. Yanger redeemed his promise to go at Herman at a furious pace, but his blows at no stage were effective. On the other hand, Herman increased his gait from the first round and before the tenth was over he was jabbing Yanger with both fists and the Tipton slasher was sorely put to it to defend himself.

Twice in the last round he was almost knocked out and was saved only by the bell. In the ten rounds Yanger had but one to his credit that could be called clean, but he evened up in two others and it was Herman all the rest of the way. In the ninth and again in the tenth the Kid almost sent Benny to dreamland. The decision in favor of Herman was well earned and proved popular.

TIP TO JACK M'CLOSKEY: JOIN A "DON'T WORRY CLUB" FOR LIFE

BY MORTON BIRGE.

"I'm so noivous."—McCloskey.

Manager John J. McCloskey of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League ought to take "Nervease for the tingles." And he can't expect, either, to sidestep all the red-headed kids.

"Mac" is a clever trader, as his swapping of old lamps for new in the St. Louis bunch shows, but he needs to cultivate repose. Here's "Mac":

First inning—"None out, none out, now easy, boys, hit er out, boys, can't always tell, boys, game's not won till it's over, boys, keep cool, old man."

Just then "Happy Hooligan" lets loose a brace of barks. "Happy" is the big English bulldog which Sam Mertes, the Cardinal left-fielder, totes around with him as mascot and defender of the hearth.

"—— —— that dog," says Mac. "Don't mind that, Bill," as Umpire Conway calls a ball on Brown.

It was that way all through, with Mac plying the purple pencil at the same time and never missing to put down the play. Mac has the color scheme like an artist. The purple pencil matches the purple socks and the socks move about as fast as the pencil, as Mac keeps score with his busy fingers, keeps tattoo with his noivous feet and lets his comments run on like Tennyson's brook, which never stopped, no matter how man came and went.

St. Louis won the game, 2 to 0, as you know, but Mac palpitated early and often as he sat on the Cardinal bench and hoped St. Louis might win, and seemed to fear they wouldn't. Talk about your human interest.

"That helps a little," as Bates was caught napping at first in the second. Considering that the next ball was "passed" it did help considerable.

After Burch scored in the third Mac breathed a bit easier. But, as he ever remembered, "Game's not won till it's over, boys." And so he urged 'em on.

As the Cardinals came back to the bench in the third some of them started to fool with "Happy Hooligan," who barked in canine delight. "Can't you quit foolin' with that dog," asks Mac. "Lot o' kids, can't behave like grown men. Say, I'm goin' to see this feller, Dockstader, and start a minstrel show."

Then Brown tries to get to second and fails, but beats it back to first, Bennett not getting the ball back to Grady quite in time. Then the purple socks flashed and the purple pencil was spasmodically clutched, and Mac, purple in the face, opined: "—— —— that man had no chance to steal that base, and he gets back safe to first."

To turn the knife around, Umpire Conway walked Brain to first. Mac was watching for Brain to go back to the bench. When he saw the fatal sign he murmured: "O, O, Conway! what are you trying to do?" One would have thought that Conway had killed Mac's last friend on this green earth. But the game went on and the little birdies sang just the same and the green grass kept growing, though Mac cast a look around as though he expected high Heaven to fall and flatten Conway out.

Next Beebe makes a handy stop of Howard's nasty bounder and Mac expands: "Kargeed never do that, that's the boy Fred, Old Sport."

Poor Karger, how are the mighty fallen in the eyes of the McCloskey.

Conroy—"Str-r-r-r one."

Mac—"Huh! Talks like a man with a mouth full o' hot mush."

In the sixth the Bostons got a man on second, and Mac tattooed with the purple-clad tootsies and jabbed the play down with the purple pencil like a man with a grievance. The seventh passed with the Cardinals' single tally still being high line, and the tension of the McCloskey went up two notches more.

"Tenney's out," yelled a fan, and the bleachers began to jeer at St. Louis playing a crippled team. Mac bent a nervous ear to the leeward and sputtered: "Tenney out! Huh! talk about men out, we've got Jake Beckley and Arndt out. Them fans make me tired. Tenney out! Huh, whole team. Huh!" And the purple color scheme palpitated again.

Then Brain singled and then Brown got by for Boston, as Mertes played jackstones with a grounder. Agony for Mac.

"—— —— ——. Mertes fumbled."

But the inning was saved and Mac's spirits rose like mercury in a heat wave. "Sam let ball go by, but we pulled out of that hole; that's all right, not criticising, boys, now cut it out, there, stop criticising, I'm not kicking, nothing said, nothing said!" and the purple patted placidly.

BUT

In the ninth, with the Cardinals having one lone run and Boston none, Mac spied the red-headed lad selling ginger pop. Then it was all off for purple peace.

"Thought I was rid of the red-chaded kids, no luck, red-headed kids are bad, don't know why. Hoodoo!" and there was purple pessimism permeating the place.

But Phyle scored on Beebe's out, and Mac breathed regularly till Conway called a strike on Lindaman, and the fans howled.

"Hear 'em howl, that was a bully strike, and they kick on that. O——" and Mac gave up his attempt to express his disgust of such unreason.

But St. Louis won and Mac went out with an air to say "Who's afraid, Cinch. Huh!"

McCloskey is a near noivous.

A 1,000-MILE TOURING CAR RACE MAY REVIVE AUTO TRACK RACING

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The entertainment committee of the Bay State Automobile Association, of which J. H. MacAlman is chairman, has arranged for the holding of a smoker in the quarters of the club on Dartmouth street on Thursday evening next. This will be the first night session of the club since the inaugural event, and might really be considered the opening of the season. Since the club has a home of its own the entertainment committee proposes to do its share toward making it popular with the members. Music and a collation, those two features which always attract a good party, will be in order.

New Yorkers are to have an opportunity of witnessing a 1,000 mile race between fully equipped touring cars, with a program of short distance events, on the second day of the meet which is scheduled for the Empire City track on August 24 and 25. One thousand mile events have been run at both the Yonkers track and at Brighton Beach; but Father Time was always the sole opponent of whomever was doing the driving. Competitive 1,000 mile races have been held at several cities in the West and have proved very successful and this has encouraged the promoters to conduct one here. The Empire City track meet will demonstrate whether or not those who have asserted that track automobile racing is dead have been mistaken or not. Barney Oldfield is to be the bright particular star of the meet, with Eddie Ball as chief of the lesser luminaries. Walter Christie will drive his front drive racer, with which he made a mile on that track in fifty-three seconds last Spring, and the entries of Guy Vaughan and C. G. Wridgeway, both of 1,000 mile fame, have been promised. It is likely that the track surface will be oiled to prevent dust from flying.

Pending the time that Mexico shall have an automobile factory or two of her own, our sister republic that lies south of the Rio Grande will purchase its official automobiles in this country. The Postoffice Department of Mexico has ordered a three-ton truck from the Knox Company of Springfield, for use in the City of Mexico. The car will be driven by an engine of two air-cooled horizontal cylinders, which will develop twenty-four horsepower.

According to the advance sheets sent out by the Department of Commerce and Labor there was a tremendous increase in the exportation of American automobiles during the past year, showing that the American manufacturers are beginning to reach out for foreign trade. During the twelve months ending June 30, 1906, the value of American automobiles exported was $3,497,016, which is a million dollars more than was exported during the previous year. Of the little more than half a million dollars worth of cars that were exported during June, England took the greatest portion, $104,709, with British North America second, Mexico third and France fourth.

INTERCITY TEAM RACE TO-NIGHT AT REVERE

Barring a rainstorm, the intercity team race at the Revere track will take place to-night. It was postponed from last Saturday night till Wednesday, and had to be held over till to-night.

The time left the riders has been well spent, as the men have put in some hard licks training, as there will be great rivalry between the riders to get the awards to-night.

Elmer Collins and Jimmy Moran will represent the Hub, while Menus and John Bedell will uphold New York's end.

They are to ride ten-mile heats, which will make forty miles of racing and if a tie occurs a deciding heat will be called for.

A big delegation will come from Lynn to see Collins ride, as the newcomer to the paced ranks has a big following in the Shoe City, while Jimmy Moran, the Chelsea milkman, will draw the whole population of that burg to see him beat out the New Yorkers.

for the mile handicap and make some fast against both Bedells, making four heats in all, but in case there is an even split in the wins, an extra heat will be necessary to decide the purse.

There will be a five-mile motor race with Charley Turville, Billy Saunders and Carl Ruden handling the levers, and the fans will have a chance to get a thrill at the way they will cut the pace out at a minute clip.

The amateurs will come out in bunches for the mile handicap and make some fast going for the distance.

BOSTON PLAYS GREYS.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 11.—Fred Tenney of the Boston Nationals will bring his team down to the scenes of his school baseball career next Sunday and will play the Providence team of the Eastern League.

During his college life at Brown Tenney was star catcher of the Brown team.

FAMOUS TROTTER WAS NOT POISONED

Recent cable dispatches told of the death of the American bred trotting stallion Wig Wag (2:16¼) at Vienna, Austria, on the day before the championship of Europe, and, as he was a prohibitive favorite, there were rumors he might have been poisoned.

Writing from Baden, Austria, Trainer A. C. Penneck says that Wig Wag's death was the result of a sudden attack of colic. He believed that he was one of the greatest trotters the world has ever had. Over American tracks it should have been handy for him to have trotted miles in 2:05.

Had he lived there was a possibility that his owner, Louis Winans of Brighton, England, would have sent him to this country to race in 1907, as the foreign system of handicapping had placed such an impost on Wig Wag that he was practically barred from Austrian races, with the exception of such as were raced on the American plan.

The championship of Europe event was won by Walnscott (2:10¼), the trotting gelding that was campaigned and owned by James Y. Gatcomb, the Concord (N. H.) horseman, when raced in this country.

FINAL HEATS TO-DAY OF ROWING REGATTA

Lake Quinsigamond will be the mecca of all boating men to-day as the best day in the annual championship regatta of the N. A. A. O. will be held on the large expanse of water, which will draw many to the Worcester shores.

Yesterday the trial heats were run off and the crews which qualified for the final tests will be on the line to-day, when the real aquatic battles will occur, with the best oarsmen in the country trying their skill against each other.

The feature event is always the single sculls championship, which gives the title to the winner, but the absence of Frank Greer takes a lot of interest out of it.

It looks from this distance like a contest between Fred Titus and Fred Shepard, as they are the most likely looking scullers with the most experience, though a dark horse may develop.

One of the biggest crowds that ever attended the regattas held on the big lake is expected to-day, and hundreds will go down from the Hub to watch the local crews contending.

It is a holiday in Worcester and the whole city will turn out to its pleasure resort to watch the stellar races carded.

Local scullers did not fare very well in the competition yesterday, the first day of the regatta and none of the banners are likely to come this way.

In the first event on the card for intermediate four-oared shells, the St. Alphonsus A. C. met the Nonpareil Rowing Club of New York, and it was a walk over for the latter. The Boston boys got to the stake all right several lengths in the rear, but on the return, twice steered into the shore and had to stop rowing to get straightened out. The youngsters shows lots of grit by plugging it out to the tape in spite of the weird course taken.

Frank Davy of Cambridge, was the only local sculler in the intermediate single sculls, with five starters. Davy was the youngest of the lot and kept with the field, going to the stakes, but was lost after rounding. The favorite with the crowd was Eddie Kearns of Worcester, who was constantly cheered and put up a grand contest, and his third place win was a tribute to his age.

Alexander Warnock of the Springfield Boat Club, won the heat with Louis Major of the First Bohemian Boat Club of New York second.

In the second heat a surprise was created by J. C. Henderson of the Winnipeg Boat Club, who rowed the whole distance in the lead. McGee, the noted Ravenswood Boat Club sculler of New York, took things easy and let Joseph J. Daley of Potomac Boat Club of Washington, keep with him on even terms till near the finish, when he pulled ahead and took second to Henderson.

The defeat of C. B. Wood in the first heat of the Association senior single sculls was a misadventure. He was going well to the stake but got tangled and made a wide circuit which lost him valuable ground.

Harry Bennett of the Springfield Boat Club, got the lead after rounding the buoys for the row home and never relinquished it. Young Jim Ten Eyck was an added starter in the race, but he just saved himself from coming in last.

The second heat in the same event was rather an easy win for that sterling sculler Frank Vesley of First Bohemian Club of New York. Walter Stokes, the old Harvard oarsman, representing the University Barge Club of Philadelphia, was expected to do better, but could not finish better than fifth and last position.

The greatest race of the day was for senior four-oared shells, with three crews, Ravenswood B. C. of New York, the Metropolitan R. C. of New York and the Portland R. C. of Oregon.

Much had been heard of the Portland boys and they promised to sweep everything they entered. They went in the lead and had command when the finish was in sight, but at the vital moment the Ravenswood four spurted and took head place. The Portland boys were content to paddle in second to qualify. The summaries:

Special to the Boston American.

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—There will be a double-header here this afternoon, it having been decided to transfer the game scheduled for next Tuesday to to-day.

Catcher Armbruster of the Boston club, whose thumb was hurt in yesterday's game, will be all right in a few days. Pitcher Dinneen left last night to spend a few days at his home in Syracuse.

Parent and Ferris made some phenomenal stops, the latter especially being responsible for the Boston's victory yesterday. Detroit scored in the first on Lindsay's three-sacker and McIntyre's double with one out. Mac died trying to make it a three-bagger, but Eubank's single brought in the second run. The third came in the seventh on Payne's safety to centre and Lindsay's double to left.

Stahl, Hoey and Parent were responsible for Boston's run getting.

ST. ANNE'S BIG FIELD DAY

The annual reunion and field day of St. Anne's Church, Somerville, is being held to-day at Combination Park, Medford. What Little Girl Will Win This Doll's House?

Write the Best Letter You Can On Keeping House and See if You Can Win It.

By Beatrice Fairfax

THIS is Mrs. Happy's baking day and what do you think she is going to bake? Ginger cookies! Doesn't that sound pretty nice?

She always lets the little girls watch her because she wants them to learn how to cook all sorts of good things when they are grown up and have homes of their own.

Mary, of course, helps, and she is always good to the children when they come into the kitchen.

It is a pleasure to cook in Mrs. Happy's kitchen, for everything is so spotlessly clean.

Mrs. Happy does not start her baking until all the housework is done.

Then Mrs. Happy washes her hands and puts on a big apron and the fun begins.

The children wouldn't miss that baking for worlds.

Each child has a piece of dough and makes a cake all for herself.

To be sure, Dorothy's cake looks pretty mussy by the time she gets through, for it falls to the floor so often, but she bakes it just the same, and anyway the floor is so clean it does not hurt it much.

Marjory makes her cake look very fine. It is meant to be a girl and her mother gives her two currants to put in for eyes.

Harold says his cake is going to be shaped like a horse. It is a pretty queer looking horse and the little girls laugh at it.

Mrs. Happy is making heaps of cookies, and I tell you they smell pretty good.

She shakes sugar over them when they come out of the oven and puts them away in a cake box.

Then each child has two cookies and a glass of lemonade, and they go out in the tent and have a party.

Of course, the baby does not have any, for she only gets milk, but as she is sound asleep upstairs in her pretty pink cradle she does not know what she is missing.

I wonder if you little girls would keep your kitchens bright and shining like the Happy House kitchen.

Write and tell the Doll House Editor what you would do. Tell him how you would take care of your house and your children.

The little girl who writes the best letter will get Happy House for her own, and I think she will be a very lucky child, as it is such a beautiful doll house and so well furnished from top to bottom.

Address your letters to the Doll House Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer st., Boston.

She Affirms Her Belief That Animals as Well as Men Pass Into the Spirit World After Death

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

MUCH has been written of Dr. Elmer Gates's experiment with a dying rat, placed in front of a sensitized screen.

According to raports (made by Dr. Ward before an audience in London), Professor Gates found that so long as the rat was alive it threw a shadow. When it was killed it became suddenly transparent.

"Here," said the lecturer, "there was a strange phenomenon. At the very instant the rat became transparent a shadow of exactly the same shape was noticed to pass, as it were, out of and beyond the glass tube and vanish as it passed upward on the sensitized screen."

Science is creeping along slowly, but surely, in the wake of the psychics, and will eventually corroborate all that the ancient seers and the modern theosophists have declared.

On page 144 of "The Great Psychological Crime" (a book published by the Indo-American Book Co., of Chicago, in 1902) occurs the following statement, which is interestingly similar to Dr. Gates's assertion:

"At the period of dissolution of an animal it is clear (to one who is able to observe the transition) that the spiritual body carries with it the animating principle of the animal entity. In due course of time, however, the animal disappears from the animal spiritual plane."

Life After Death

THE author of the book proceeds to state that the human being who has developed his better nature to any extent while upon earth "also disappears from his first plane to reappear upon a higher one"; so that while both the man and the animal possess a spiritual body, the higher being progresses more rapidly to greater opportunities after the body is cast off.

Should science prove the fact (as it will) of the existence of all life after death, the above statement must be very gratifying to those anxious souls who are distressed at the mere suggestion that any other order of creation save man can enjoy the privilege of immortality.

"What," said one man to me recently, "do you mean to say that I will have to associate with dogs, cats and horses in heaven?"

"You associate with them here," I replied, "and you do not seem to feel degraded by living upon the same earth with them.

"Why may they not enjoy the next plane as well, and receive the benefits of an improved condition, the same as yourself? You would still be their superior if that is the question which troubles you."

In the older religions of the world the sacredness of all life and its oneness with the Creative Principle are recognized; but in the orthodox creeds which have taken the place of that simple and beautiful religion taught by Christ man's inordinate egotism has put animals on the plane with machines; and it has made future existence a human trust in which the lower creatures can have no share.

J. Howard Moore, in his "The Universal Kinship," says:

"The doctrine of universal kinship is as old as human philosophy. It was taught by that divine soul Buddha, by Pythagoras and by Plutarch, who in the breadth and intensity of his moral nature was in advance of all save an exceptional few of those living to-day, two thousand years after him.

"And now the central truth of the Darwinian philosophy is the unity of life. And during the next century this truth is going to receive unprecedented recognition in all departments of human thought."

Rider Haggard something less than two years ago stated that he was positive that he saw the spiritual body of his dog at the exact moment when (as it transpired the following day) the dog was dying.

A Needed Belief

GOD would never have made so much intelligence, so much affection, so much loyalty and gratitude, as exists in animals unless He intended these qualities to continue. The world needs this belief in the future life of animals to vitalize and animate its religion into practical expressions of the Golden Rule.

Man is an animal. A higher animal, to be sure, the highest yet evolved, but still an animal. All other lesser forms of life are his kin.

All life is from the Eternal Source, and will go and on, through various planes of existence.

Just in proportion to the development of the love nature, the power of unselfish devotion, the inteligent use of life's privileges, will the opportunities of the next stage of life be given us.

There is nothing shocking to my sense of dignity in the thought that many loved animals on earth may be found grazing in spiritual pastures through which my soul will pass, after its release from the body, and that from trees of living green I shall hear the songs of birds which have gone before me.

So strong is my belief in this that I strive to treat all dumb creatures in such a way that no accusing eyes of my dumb kin may be turned upon my spirit in that hour, and that when I meet the Great Master He may say approvingly, not reproachfully, "As ye did unto the least of my little ones, ye did it unto Me."

LETTERS FROM GIRLS WHO WANT TO WIN IT

Try Hard to Write a Better Letter Than the Best

SOME letters from girls who want to win the big doll's house will be printed every day. Here are some from today's mails. See if you can write a better letter than any of them.

LET 'EM ROMP

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

If I had such a pretty house I would try my best to keep it clean. Every morning I would air the rooms and keep the house very healthy. I would sweep and dust the library, kitchen, dining-room and bed room. I would be very kind to my children. I would give them healthy food. When it was warm and pleasant I would let them romp on the lawn. When it was stormy they could play in the library. I would teach them to be kind and respectful to every one.

ROSE LYNCH, 10 years.
No. 39 Webber street, Leominster.

RELIGION FIRST

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

There are many duties to which a good housekeeper must attend. I would attend to all these duties. My first duty would be to teach my children their religion properly. They would be fed with proper food. I should teach them to be obedient, loving and unselfish children. They must also be polite to every one. My house should be looked after. It should be neat, clean and orderly. I would cook and sew for them and teach them how to.

GRACE McLAUGHLIN, 11 years.
No. 51 Clinton street, Everett.

JUST LIKE MAMMA

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

Mamma keeps her house nice and clean so I will have mine the same. Monday I will pick up papers and things after Sunday. Tuesday wash clothes, Wednesday iron them, Thursday mend and perhaps have company, Friday sweep and dust, Saturday cook and give children bath and myself, besides having a cool bath every night. Sunday I would take children for a ride to beach or country. I would have a nice time.

ALICE HUGHES, 7 years.
No. 36 Adams street, Medford.

TEACH KINDNESS

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

I would rise at six o'clock in the morning, arrange my toilet, open up my windows, air my beds, go down stairs and raise my shades. Then I would put my breakfast on, then go up stairs, wake my children, get them ready for breakfast, then for school. Now I would do my kitchen work, go up stairs and do my chamber work. I would teach my children to be kind to dumb animals, sick people and cripples. I will clean my tea chest out every day. I will give my children very good food.

GOOD TO BABY

DEAR DOLL EDITOR:

If I were a little housekeeper I would keep my house neat and clean. I'd dust, sweep, wash, iron, and keep the children clean. I would make the children quiet and behave at the table. I should go to market and buy nice vegetables, because they are good for growing children. I would treat the baby good and be patient with her for they cannot tell what they want.

It Takes Skill to Make Sandwiches

ART is required in making sandwiches. Simply placing a slice of meat between two slices of bread and butter by no means completes the process, nor does it follow that the result is a tempting morsel.

As one so often meets carelessly prepared sandwiches, a few hints on their preparation may prove useful, particularly as, during the Summer months, when open air parties are in vogue, nothing can well take the place of delicately cut sandwiches.

The bread, which may be brown or white, must be stale enough to cut evenly, at least a day old, and a tin loaf is the most economical. The slices should be about one-eighth of an inch in thickness.

The butter must be above suspicion.

The mustard, freshly made and mixed with the butter for most savory sandwiches. Allow two teaspoonfuls of mustard (or more according to taste) to each half pound of butter and mix the two by means of a wooden spoon.

Meat, game and poultry must be free from skin and gristle and cut into small, thin pieces, and hard-boiled eggs coarsely chopped and seasoned lightly.

After forming the sandwich, press the bread and butter firmly together. Trim off the crusts and cut into oblong, round, square or crescent shapes. Keep them covered with a damp cloth until required. Serve on a folded napkin and garnish tastefully with parsley, etc.

Here are one or two recipes for sandwich mixtures which are extremely popular.

Sardine Sandwiches.

Pound eight boned and skinned sardines with two ounces of fresh butter, a little salt and cayenne. Spread the mixture on slices of brown bread and butter, and over them lay a slice of skinned tomato. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and a pinch of castor sugar. A few drops of lemon juice if liked. Form into sandwiches and cut into finger lengths.

Montpelier Sandwiches

Mix three hard-boiled yolks with an ounce of butter, one dessertspoonful of anchovy essence, or three boned anchovies, cayenne to taste. Pass the whole through a sieve and use.

Toast Sandwiches

Slices of golden brown toast. Split the slices, place a spoonful of mayonnaise sauce (and a few chopped capers if liked) with some chopped game or poultry. Form into small sandwiches. These may be varied by substituting fish for the meat, and the addition of a little cress is an improvement.

Fruit Sandwiches

Use French or milk bread in this case. Between the slices place a spoonful of thick cream, sweetmeat, cover with slices of banana or pineapple; strawberries, etc., may be used in the same way. Cut into dainty shapes and garnish with maidenhair fern.

UNIQUE FASHIONS IN JEWELS

A PARISIAN jeweler now decrees that diamonds be set in steel. He has made a lovely and lengthy lorgnette chain set with diamonds.

The steel is of a deep, rich color and the diamonds alternate in circles with strands of the metal. Another quite fresh inspiration in jewelry is a necktie made of velvet ribbon with dangling luster ends of diamonds. These are not worn tied round the throat in Paris, but beneath a tall lace collar loosely knotted in front, and while one end is allowed to dangle almost to the waist, the other terminates half way down the corsage.

Coral's, so fashionable now in white and palest rose pink, are being set with diamonds, and, though the diamonds look to the unappreciative eye scarcely more lovely than cut crystal, they really have a far greater heritage of brilliance than crystal.

FORTUNES MADE FROM TRIFLES

SOME of the greatest inventions have been the production of men who have reaped little or nothing by their discoveries, just as on the other hand huge fortunes have been made by the patentees of novelties of a trivial kind.

Take, for instance, such articles as studs, hairpins, lead pencils and pens. Improvements in connection with things of this kind have netted huge sums to their discoverers. The invention of the pencil-point protector with its india rubber top is a notable instance.

Many men have made fortunes in quick time by producing or taking up popular fads.

The manufacturer who first put twilled flannel on the market built up a huge business as the result. The idea of making sandals for children's wear was another highly profitable notion. Even the shape of a mustache may mean a fortune to its designer, as in the case of the Berlin hairdresser who invented the form of mustache which the German Emperor made fashionable.

CLEANING STRAW HATS

FOR the benefit of each and all, here is a recipe for cleaning straw. Soap made into a lather with warm water, and applied with a soft brush both inside and outside—this is the commencement of the process. When the straw is quite clean wash off the soapsuds with a quick rinse of plain water. If the hat is much soiled or burnt and requires bleaching, stand it for five minutes in boiling water in which a quarter of an ounce of oxalic acid powder has been dissolved—the hat should be held down with a stick to save your fingers; this precaution should be adopted not only because of the chance of being scalded, but also because the acid is a strong poison. Finally rinse the hat in clear water and stand it to dry before a small fire or in the sun.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

THERE was a dead silence in the darkened auditorium as the screen flashed white again for a second, and then the series of photographs began—the great steamship and the bustling scene on board; first the baggage being taken on to the ship, and the embarking of passengers—shadows flitting across the screen.

Comic scenes, even, that provoked laughter here and there among the audience—though the grim knowledge that these were photographs from life of people now lying in the sea's cold embrace stilled the laughter almost instantly—the little misadventures incidental to such a scene of activity; the fat porter stumbling as he staggered under the weight of an enormous trunk, the anxious mother with half a dozen children, whom she drove before her along the gangway like a brood of chickens in evident nervousness.

Then the film changed suddenly, and another film began to unroll; the embarking of the saloon passengers.

As these figures came flitting across the scene, Haggard, sitting alone in his box in the darkened theatre, held his breath, waiting for Robert Wynter's face to flash out on the great screen. Waiting, waiting—then with a low, hoarse cry he started violently, with the whole truth laid bare in one illuminating moment.

Robert Wynter was not among the passengers—but there he saw Grieve going on board the steamer! Grieve!

And the whole conspiracy was revealed to him.

The mysterious passenger who had gone ashore at the Lizard, the one survivor who had not come forward to divulge his name, had been none other than Grieve!

CHAPTER LXXXVII.

Tricked!

THE curtain had not yet risen on the ballet; the orchestra was galloping through a gay, sparkling waltz, filling the vast theatre with a throbbing lilt that set feet tingling to dance, mounting to a crashing crescendo.

Grieve sat in the front of the box, staring at the tiers upon tiers of expectant faces, and the little bluish spirals of smoke that ascended on all sides.

He found himself suddenly thinking, in his rather muddled condition, of Violet; she had been waiting outside the gallery door when she saw him, with a girl friend who, he remembered, lived in the same street in Harlem. He wondered if Violet had formed one of the audience after all.

He was in the emotional state of semi-intoxication, and the feeling had come to him that perhaps he had been a bit hard on Violet. He felt a kind of maudlin remorse.

He must make amends in some way, he decided; how would it be to send her a gold chain bangle? He knew that, above everything, she coveted a gold bangle.

And a little note to accompany it. A kind little note that would explain away his conduct to her that night, while it gave her to understand that the old footing was no longer possible.

Yes, a kind little note; the thought of it almost affected him to tears.

Haggard ordered drink for the two; and as the waiter brought it the bulb of the shaded electric light above them in the ceiling of the box died down to a mere luminous thread, and through the dimness the tips of cigarettes and cigars glowed faintly red like scattered angry stars.

The curtain rose on a dazzingly lit stage, crowded with figures, full of color and animation.

Fate's Drama

Somehow Philip Haggard's thoughts were of another play and another stage, where a tragi-comedy of life, far removed from that mimic scene behind the footlights yonder, was being played; and he and Grieve were the actors in it, and the stage was darkening as the play neared its denouement. He had thoughts for nothing else—that play that fate had staged-managed!

Grieve blinked down at the kaleidoscope medley of moving figures, a foolish smile fixed on his face.

And behind him Haggard had taken from his pocket again that little green bottle. What a curious thing chloral was; colorless as water, yet how potent. Deep, peaceful slumber lay embodied in it for the racked nerves that could not rest nor sleep; just a few more drops and that dreamless sleep would never be broken; the heart's action would cease. That would be all. Wonderful chloral!

And the traces it left were so evanescent. It was not like the ordinary poison. A man who had died from an overdose of chloral might easily be thought to have succumbed to heart disease.

Haggard drew out the cork, and the faint odor came to his nostrils. His hands shook a little as he glanced furtively round; Grieve was staring down in half-drunken solemnity at the stage. His hand stole out to Grieve's glass.

"Come, why don't you drink?" Haggard said in an odd, strained voice.

Strange Fancies

He suddenly felt very cold, as though an icy breath had passed through the box. Grieve turned with a vacant laugh, and took up the glass unsteadily, spilling some of the contents. He seemed in no hurry to raise it to his lips as Haggard waited in a fever of impatience.

"Drink, man, drink!" whispered Haggard persuasively, insistently. Then suddenly all the concentrated fury and fear and hatred seething within him broke out resistlessly in his voice, making it a menacing command: "Drink!"

Grieve smiled amiably.

"All right, ol' man, needn't look so fierce! Here's luck." And he lifted the glass to his lips and drained it, setting it down empty; then bent his face to the bright scene again.

Haggard sat trembling violently in the overtaking action of fear. He felt suddenly as though all the world was watching him—all the countless eyes in the darkened house, all the faces on the lighted stage.

"Don't be a fool man, and give way to fancies like that!" he whispered to himself, setting his teeth. "Now, if ever, you've got to keep your head clear; now, if ever, you must not give way to panic! You're lost if you do!"

THIS YEAR'S CROPS BREAK ALL RECORDS

Government Forecast Shows Big Increase in Wheat, Corn, Oats and Potatoes.

Record-breaking productions of wheat, corn and oats are forecasted in the report of the Government which was made public yesterday, showing the condition of the crops on August 1.

There will be, according to estimates, 772,263,000 bushels of wheat, against an actual crop of 692,978,000 a year ago. The crop of corn is estimated at 2,713,194,000 bushels, against 2,707,993,000 last year. That is to say, the farmers of this country will have nearly 80,000,000 bushels more of wheat and more than 5,000,000 bushels of corn to sell this year than last. It means a greater movement of cars and increased exports. It means the employment of many more thousands in harvesting and moving the crops, and more wages.

Big increases are also figured in the crops of oats and potatoes.

The widespread effect of such an increase in crops scarcely can be estimated. The handling of these extra millions of bushels will engage the services of a hundred kinds of labor, from the harvesters to the final salesmen, the railroad employes and the men who help to take the big ships over seas.

These huge figures were indeed disappointing to Wall street, because a larger yield of Spring wheat had been expected. The size of the crop, however, is so much greater than that of a year ago that the price of grains declined in Chicago and on the local exchange.

The condition of corn on Aug. 1 was 88.1, as compared with 87.5 last month, 89 on August 1, 1905, 87.3 at the corresponding date in 1904, and a ten-year August average of 84.

Preliminary returns indicate a Winter wheat crop of about 493,434,000 bushels, or an average of 16.7 bushels per acre, as compared with 14.3 bushels per acre last year as finally estimated. This preliminary estimate of the yield of Winter wheat and the estimated acreage on which it is based are subject to such revision and correction when the final estimates of the bureau are made next December as may be found proper through investigations now in progress.

HENRY G. DAVIS TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 11.—There is practically no doubt that former Senator Henry Gassaway Davis, Democratic candidate for Vice President in 1904, will accept his party's nomination for Congress in the second district. Mr. Comstock Was Right

General Circulation of the "Art Students' Magazine" WOULD Be Indecent. Mr. Comstock Deserves Thanks

In the name of "Art" foolish editors and artists have been denouncing Anthony Comstock because he destroyed a certain pamphlet, or so-called "magazine," published for profit by art students in New York.

If it was intended to circulate the magazine generally—and that, evidently, was the intention, since special inducements were offered to "push it"—Mr. Comstock rendered a public service in interfering with the plans of the people responsible.

This so-called magazine presented poor efforts to sketch the human body nude. Bad art is of itself immoral. Imperfect representations of the human form are as offensive to decency as to art. And this precious magazine contained some extremely unpleasant samples of poor work.

Many so-called "artists and sculptors" and "friends of art" have been howling about Comstock's action and denouncing it.

It is well to give the other side.

The magazine seized is such as no wise father or mother would allow in the hands of young people. THAT IS SUFFICIENT JUSTIFICATION FOR MR. COMSTOCK.

It is necessary, undoubtedly, for students of art to draw the naked human figure as part of their education.

BUT IT IS NOT NECESSARY FOR ANY ORGANIZATION TO TRY TO MAKE MONEY BY CIRCULATING WIDELY THE IMPERFECT EFFORTS OF IMPERFECT ART STUDENTS.

And, by the way, it is not for self-appointed art critics or self-admiring artists to decide what is moral—what the child shall see or shall not see.

THE MOTHER AND THE FATHER DECIDE THOSE THINGS. If they are prudish, old-fashioned, "or lacking in respect for art," that is their misfortune. IT IS ALSO THEIR OWN BUSINESS.

The public has recently been treated to various revelations connected with "art"—with the Stanford White murder, with various studios, etc.—that do not inspire absolute confidence in New York art or art circles as a whole.

The pamphlet which Comstock seized represents, in our opinion, the effort of some acute person to make money in an unpleasant way. The idea was to sell this magazine for a dollar a year. Its general circulation could only do harm, no matter what the artists may say.

It is not to be denied that Mr. Comstock has made mistakes—everybody makes mistakes who tries to do anything worth while in this world.

In this instance MR. COMSTOCK HAS NOT MADE A MISTAKE. He has acted properly to prevent the publication of a magazine which might well have served as the introductory feature of a mass of indecent periodical literature such as is circulated freely in Germany and in France under the name of "Art."

This country has got common sense. It PREFERS common sense and self-respect to any sort of indecency, no matter how large the word "ART" may be written upon it.

It is well for artists, art students or others who may contemplate the sale of a magazine by illustrating it with badly drawn nude figures to be made to realize that there is a Mr. Comstock and a Mr. Policeman ready to interfere with their plans.

We should like to ask which one of the artists indorsing the particular indecency that Comstock prevented would be willing to peddle that magazine up and down the street?

There isn't one of them, IF HE HAS ANY REPUTATION TO LOSE, that would be seen exhibiting and offering for sale the pictures which Comstock seized. And there isn't a man of sense who can help knowing that to spread such a magazine—EVEN IF ITS INTENTIONS WERE GOOD, WHICH WE DON'T THINK THEY WERE—among young people would do very great harm, produce great demoralization.

Is the Light Breaking in New Hampshire?

When the trusted hirelings of the railroads quarrel among themselves there is hope for the large body of the people who would throw off the railroad yoke.

For this reason the "pleasantries" exchanged by Jacob H. Gallinger, United States Senator and chief lobbyist of the Boston & Maine Railroad, and Henry M. Putney, chairman of the Railroad Commission and chief official agent of the Boston & Maine Railroad, at the Republican State Committee gathering in Concord, make agreeable reading for thousands of plain, honest citizens of the Granite State.

Gallinger and Putney are backing different candidates for the party nomination for Governor. The Senator is supporting Greenleaf, who wears the railroad tag. The commissioner is championing Floyd, who likewise wears the Boston & Maine label.

"Where do you get the right to give me orders?" asks Putney, angrily, of Gallinger.

There may be a difference of opinion as to who is the premier railroad spokesman, the Senator-lobbyist or the chairman of the Railroad Commission, and consequently a divergence of views as to who properly has the authority to give orders in Republican party councils.

There can be no difference of opinion, however, as to the significance of the present situation in New Hampshire.

The inability of the railroad to unite its servants upon a single candidacy; the animosities developing among its heretofore trusted lieutenants, and the activity of Winston Churchill, Lincoln Republican, in rousing the voters to a sense of their State's slavery, are facts all working together to a favorable end.

Clearly, there is hope for the ultimate deliverance of the Granite State from its railroad ownership.

SUCCESSFUL MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP IN CHICAGO

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Critics of the municipal ownership movement will find food for reflection in the ninth annual report of the Department of Electricity of the City of Chicago, which has just been issued. From this report it appears that in consequence of owning and operating a city lighting plant for the last eighteen years, Chicago has saved $323,305 in comparison with what it would have been obliged to pay if it had procured all its public lighting from private corporations.

This estimate of saving makes full allowance for interest on the plant and the taxes that would have been received from private companies. The report estimates that the cost of operating the municipal plant last year was $352,547 less than the city would have had to pay a private corporation.

This is especially worthy of consideration in view of the fact that one of the criticisms of the department is that it pays higher wages than are paid by private companies. Isn't it better for the city to pay high wages to workmen than to pay enormous profits to monopolistic corporations that pay lower wages? Considered with reference to the expenditure per lamps, the cost to the city for its own plant during the past year is reported to have been $52.63, whereas the amount it paid to the private company for lamps needed in excess of its own during the same year was $103.

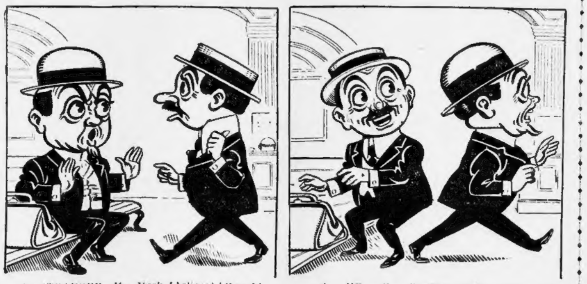
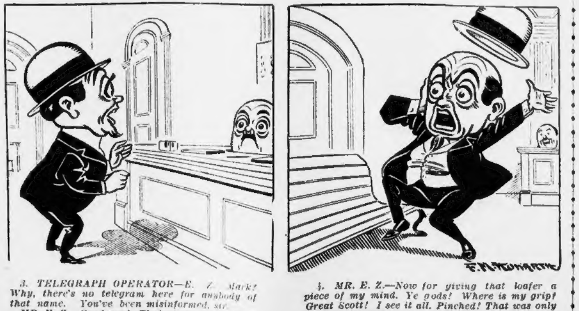
E. Z. MARK RECEIVES A TELEGRAM

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner



1. STRANGER—Mr. Mark, I believe? I thought I recognized you from your pictures in the papers. Mr. Mark, there's a telegraphic dispatch over there at the telegraph booth for you. It appears to be of great importance.

2. MR. E. Z.—Gee whiz! From Mary, I'll bet. Something is wrong at home. She knew I would be here at the station at this time. Dear me, I hope it is nothing serious.



3. TELEGRAPH OPERATOR—E. Z. Mark? Why, there's no telegram here for anybody of that name. You've been misinformed, sir.

MR. E. Z.—Goodness! That must have been a practical joker.

4. MR. E. Z.—Now for giving that loafer a piece of my mind. Ye gods! Where is my grip? Great Scott! I see it all. Pinched! That was only a ruse. And three hundred dollars in bank notes in that bag, too. Oh! DONE ONCE AGAIN, AGAIN, AGAIN!

Dinkelspiel Pays a Visit to Saratoga

By George V. Hobart

SARATOGA, TO-DAY.

MEIN LIEBER LOOEY—I haf left your mother at home to enchoy a vell-earned wacation vile I am here Saratogoing myself, as far as der law vill allowance.

Beauty und fashion und all of us round boys dot make life vot it is in der great metrollopus vas here at der races.

I vas hafing der time of my life. At night ve drink high balls to make us sick so in der morning ve can drink Saratoga vater to make us vell.

Dis is vot is called reciprocity in dis country, because it vorks both vays against der middle.

Nefer, Looey, nefer before did I see in vun bunch such a crowd of sports und sponges; of plunchers und pluggers; of shrimps und lopsters; of canary birds und hen hawks; of hotel vaiters, bellboys und plain robbers; of hack drivers und second-story men.

Here at Saratoga it costs money to draw a deep breath, und der low, hoarse woice of der cash rechister follows me all der day und haunts my dreams by der night in.

Society is ould in force, eggspecially at night, ven der full dress idea lets dem ould a leedle more den de law allows.

Nefer before in der history of Saratoga haf so many peoples rushed here mit vide-open pocketbooks und deir bank accounts frothing at the mouth.

Hall bedrooms in boarding houses vich hidderto vas used only as an envelope for der broken furniture vas now selling rapidly at $100 a front foot.

At some of der hotel dining rooms it costs sigs dollars to peep in, eight dollars to valk in, und tventy dollars to shovel in enough French cooking to start vun attack of dyspepsomania.

Many rich peoples may be seen in dese dining rooms who vas now using a fork in public for der fairst time.

Der result is alvays picturesqueful, but not midouid surprises for deir shirtboozums.

You haf read it in der papers, Looey, vare gambling in Saratoga has been gifen a knock-ouid blow in der solo apoplexus, but doan'd belief your listener, Looey, doan'd belief it.

Any man dot comes to Saratoga mit nine dollars spending money und says he could find no place to play faro or loozette ain'd a gambler—he is yust a plain liar.

Dick Canfield's Betting Bungalow ain'd open as usual, but it is usually open.

Der difference between dis year und last year at Canfield's vas a door mit a fancy knob on it.

Last year der door vas vide open.

Dis year der door is closed und you haf to turn der knob before entering.

Dis is der up-to-date idea of dot olt choke vich says, "Ven is a door not a door?"

In Saratoga der answer is, "Ven it's at Canfield's."

I valked in dare last efening und der maknifficence of der brilliant picture spread before my eyes is someding I shall nefer forget because I lost nine dollars und my sleeping car tigget.

As der poet says it, "Wice is der monster parent of a t'ousand sins—unless ve put our money on der card dot vins!"

Yours, mit luff.

The Road to 'Success'

By Wex Jones

LET everything go
In the hustle for dough,
And never let up
For a billion or so.

TO limbo with youth
And friendship and truth;
Get your mitts on the coin
Without scruple or ruth.

EXPAND your first million
Till it swells to a billion;
Then toil day and night
To make it a trillion.

AND then when your store
Is a trillion or o'er—
Why, keep on a-hustling
And rustling for more.

KEEP on, never stop;
Keep on till you drop.
Every dollar you miss,
Some other will cop.

KEEP on till you die—
And then from the sky
You may watch your gay heirs
Make your dollar-birds fly.

ANOTHER VIEW OF COMSTOCKISM

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your article in the BOSTON AMERICAN of August 8, briefly reporting Professor C. H. Smith's recent lecture in condemnation of Comstockism, should be read and digested by every man and woman in the United States. For advocating the same things in his paper Moses Harman, the venerable editor of Lucifer, was sentenced by a Federal judge to one year's imprisonment at hard labor in the Joliet, Ill., penitentiary, the sentence commencing December 26, 1905.

Many petitions have been sent to the President, asking him to pardon Mr. Harman, but the Strenuous One refuses to do anything to assist the old man to regain his liberty, so he will have to serve his whole time unless death comes to his relief.

When the ideas advocated by Professor Smith are accepted by our people, such outrages as are now committed by Comstock and his supporters will come to an end.

A LABOR VIEW OF MORAN'S RELEASE OF WOMEN

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The action of District Attorney Moran in discharging twenty-one inmates from the Massachusetts Home for Intemperate Women should be hailed with delight by all friends of organized labor. We have too many institutions in our country making profit out of the poor and unfortunate, and the extent of their charity is extended to themselves first and the pity for the poor is oftentimes nothing but a mere subterfuge. If these institutions are to make money out of convict labor, let the community be aware of that fact, and let them not deceive the public by any high sounding list of members, who perhaps never attend any meetings. Many a poor laundry girl out of employment to-day will to-morrow find herself employed as the direct result of the District Attorney's action.
